Board Approves First Reading of New Milk Bill

MEASURE BANS RAW MILK IN CITY APRIL 1

Lone Dissenting Vote Cast on Pasteurization Plan at Health Board Meeting.

GETS TWO MORE READINGS

Bill to Take Place of Present Grading Requirements on Raw Milk Sold Here.

A controversial issue for the past three months—one that has been subject to frequent criticism by local milk dealers—was on its way to become mandatory as the Mansfield board of health last night, in a special session, called by Health Commissioner Dr. Roy C. Rehder, approved the first reading of an ordinance calling for complete pasteurization of the city's milk supply.

Two more readings of the bill must be held before the order becomes effective. Provisions in the measure call for the invoking of the law April 1.

After reading the measure, the board engaged in an hour's discussion, but when Dr. Rehder, secretary of the board, called the roll, the only dissenting vote was cast by Glenn L. Bierly, lone voting Republican member of the five-man board.

Bierly Cites Reasons.

Bierly contended that by the measure the board was making "arbitrary use of its authority and playing into the hands of a few."

The law, he argued, would be the producers who had pasteurization equipment. He contended the measure would diminish the supply of milk because many farmers now selling raw milk in the city would be unable to purchase pasteurization equipment.

He advocated instead rigid inspections for producers of grade "A" raw milk now being sold in the city under the existing grading ordinance

The other voting members of the board are Dr R. R. Black, Attorney J. H. Gongwer, Dr. K. E Buhr and R. E. Otteiman. Mayor Earl A. McFarland is a non-voting member but was not at last night's meeting.

The bill will permit sale of two grades of pasteurized milk and outlaws the existing sections of the ordinance that allows

INQUIRY OPENS

Labor Racketeering Witnesses Guarded In Cleveland.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Closely-guarded witnesses today began testifying in the Cuyahoga county grand jury investigation of labor racketeering in this city of a million.

Witnesses from a dozen cities were secreted in a downtown hotel until they were expected to relate how they were shaken down by union officials and forced to pay tribute.

Nearby, in other offices, were Safety Director Elliot Ness, and several of his undercover investigators, who completed yesterday a six-month investigation of blackmail and intimidation in the building industry here

Ness said that knowledge that 50 or 60 other victims had given affidavits and were prepared to testify apparently had emboldened other prospective witnesses to tell their stories.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (AP) — The Indiana supreme court today studied appeals made in an effort to save Heber L. Hicks, convicted slayer of Harry R. Miller, retired Cincinnati fire captain, from the electric chair Feb. 4.

Contending Hicks had been "framed," his attorneys submitted to the court yesterday affidavits signed by William Kuhlman, Frank Gore Williams and John Poholsky, all of whom have been electrocuted.

SPUR HUNT FOR LONE FUGITIVE

Police Guard Two O'Connell Kidnapers After Capture In Syracuse Home.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(AP)—Heavily guarded, two recaptured members of a gang convicted of the 1933 O'Connell kidnaping, were lodged today in separate cells while state and city officers continued their hunt for the third participant of the jail break

The pair, John Oley and Harold "Red" Crowley, who said he "liked his freedom like anyone else," were moved yesterday from Syracuse police station to the detention quarters in the Onondaga county court building to await prosecution on escape charges.

The third, Percy Geary, was still at large following his leap from a bathroom window of a Syracuse rooming house where Oley and Crowley meekly surrendered yesterday to officers who were directed there by a janitor—Ivan Whitford.

Whitford earlier had walked into headquarters, drew Patrolman Harold Kelley aside and cas-

Philippine Area, Hit by Typhoon, Still In Isolation.

MANILA, P. I.—(U.P.)—The extent of a typhoon's damage to life and property in the southern part of the Philippine archipelago remained uncertain today, with the distressed area in its second day of isolation from the rest of the commonwealth.

U. S., BRITAIN TO NEGOTIATE TRADE TREATY

Nations Agree to Consider Reciprocal Program With Far-Reaching Effects.

POLICY WAS LONG SOUGHT

Anglo-American Co-operation Necessary to Lower World Tariffs, Hull Says.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States and Great Britain agreed today to negotiate for a reciprocal trade pact, a decision fraught with far-reaching economic and political implications.

It was the first formal step toward an objective long sought by the Roosevelt administration as an indispensable feature of its program for liberalization of world commerce.

The decision was announced by Secretary Hull in a statement asserting merely that the United States "contemplates" such negotiations.

Start Study Soon.

Actual start of the negotiations, expected within a few weeks, will climax more than a year of exploratory work by representatives of both governments in London and Washington

Hull's announcement, released simultaneously with a statement to the British House of Commons on the subject, gave no hint of the basis of approach agreed upon nor any details of the long preliminary conversations.

There appeared good reason to believe, however, that the British government probably consented to consider granting to some American products treatment equal to that which it now accords to goods from the British Dominions under "Empire preference"

Vitally Important.

Secretary Hull has striven, since his reciprocal trade program started in 1934, to obtain an agreement with Great Britain in the conviction that closed Anglo-American economic co-operation is essential to any general lowering of world trade barriers.

He was represented as believing that more intimate commercial ties between the two nations not only would react to their own advantage through freer exchange of goods but would set an example for other nations to join in a general movement to remove or adjust trade restrictive measures.

FOUND SANE

Shelby Father Denies Charge In Traffic Death.

Adjudged sane by an examining board of three Mansfield physicians, Pose Wade, 42, of Shelby today pleaded innocent before Judge C. H. Huston to a charge of second degree manslaughter in the death of his son, Woodrow, 18, in a traffic accident near Shelby last summer.

"I can't remember anything about the accident," Wade told Judge Huston, who ordered him to employ a lawyer and "think it over again." No date was set for a trial. Wade was returned to the county jail where he is held under $5,000 bond

The indictment against Wade was returned after a younger son, Wilbur, unhurt in the accident, told authorities that he believed his father intentionally wrecked the car to "get even" with the sons. The indictment states that Wade was intoxicated at the time of the accident.

Drs. Philmour Bein, W. W. Peirce and Leopold Adams examined Wade.

Market Losses Lead Toledoan Wife To Decide On Death Pact

TOLEDO—(AP)—Harry Haudenschild, 50, founder of the Air-Way Electric Appliance corporation and president of the Air Scale company, shot to death his wife, Luella, 48, and then killed himself today in their home at Maumee. A verdict of murder and suicide was returned by Coroner William M. Shapiro.

A note tied to the door of the home of Joseph Judge, a neighbor, signed "Lou and Harry," declared they were "worn out fighting to save our home. We have decided to end it all."

Another note addressed to W. S Carroll, secretary of the Air Scale company, was found on Carroll's desk two hours after the discovery of the bodies. This note also said that the couple was "broken in health and spirits with no apparent relief in sight" and had decided to kill themselves.

The bodies were discovered by Chris Demetroff, night fireman of the Toledo Trust company, who lives at the Judge home. He found the note, enclosed in an envelope, tied to the knob of the rear door. The couple had been dead three hours, officials said.

Haudenschild suffered severe financial losses during the depression and friends said he suffered additional losses during the recent stock market crash. A mortgage on his home had been foreclosed.

Married Widow of Man He Slew to Atone for Crime

Silent for 3 Years, Rancher Tells Bizarre Story of Killing of Man Wife Believed Had Deserted Her.

ST. GEORGE, Utah—(AP)—From lips tight locked three years, Charles Bosshardt loosed today a bizarre story that he killed a man, then married the victim's widow—who did not know her husband was dead—to atone for his crime.

From a jail cell at Salt Lake City 33-year-old George Schaefer, confirmed Bosshardt's story of killing Spencer Malan March 17, 1935, in a ranch fight, and of Bosshardt's subsequent marriage to Mrs. Malan, who is Schaefer's sister.

Threatened to Leave.

And at the ranch, scene of the killing near Enterprise, 25 miles northwest of here, Mrs. Bosshardt nervously stroked the hair of her 11-year-old son—Malan's son—and told Sheriff Antone B. Prince she always had believed her first husband deserted her.

"Spencer had threatened several times to leave, and when he disappeared that St. Patrick's night, I thought he had made good his threat," she said.

"After a year I got a divorce on grounds of desertion, and some time later Charles and I went to Pioche, Nev., and were married. Neither my husband nor my brother ever gave a sign they knew what had happened to Spencer."

Bosshardt, 25, and Schaefer said they threw the body into an old well. Deputies climbing into the 110-feet deep hole discovered a cave-in had buried the bottom in 25 feet of dirt. It may take several days to remove the debris.

Both prisoners insisted Mrs. Bosshardt was ignorant of the killing.

Schaefer said: "I don't know how the story got out. I have had three wives. I don't remember telling any of my wives about it."

ROOSEVELT HAS TOOTH PULLED

Abcessed Molar Extracted, Doctor Expects Fever To Leave.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt had his abcessed tooth extracted today after his dentist discovered the infection could not otherwise be cured.

Captain Ross T. McIntire, the president's physician, said his patient still had a half a degree of fever but predicted that with the tooth out the temperature would go down.

McIntire said the president's condition had been complicated by an upset stomach, but that this had completely cleared up.

The doctor described the abcess around the lower molar as quite large and said it "drained well."

CALLS CONVICTS IN PAROLE QUIZ

Duffy Says 200 From Pen To Testify in Probe.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said today that 150 to 200 Ohio penitentiary convicts would be called to testify before a special grand jury which opens Monday at inquiry into operations of the state parole board

He indicated that the jurors probably would be taken to the prison to hear the testimony.

Advised that Mrs. Arch W. Naylor of Zanesville was opposed to Duffy's suggestion that she appear before the grand jury here, the attorney general said he might convene a special jury in Muskingum county and subpoena here to testify.

Mrs. Naylor's husband is one of the key figures in Duffy's investigation.

STRIKES CLOSE 4 G. M. PLANTS

Sit-Downs In 2 Plants Force Closing of 2 Others; 14,000 Workers Idle.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Sit down strikers occupied two General Motors corporation plants today, forcing the closing of two other automobile works and throwing approximately 14,000 men into idleness.

The development further strained relations between the giant corporation and the Committee for Industrial Organization's affiliate, the United Automobile Workers.

Shops closed by the strikes were the Pontiac body factory of the Fisher Body company, a G. M. subsidiary, and the foundry of the Cadillac Motor Car company, also a G. M. plant.

Also shut down, because of a shortage of materials, were the Cadillac Motor Car company plant at Detroit and the Pontiac Motor Car company plant at Pontiac, Mich.

The sit-down strike at the Pontiac body plant was the second in three days. It began late yesterday, less than 24 hours after the first one had ended. About 100 men held the plant.

The new incidents appeared to be a tightening of tension between G. M. and the U. A. W., which the corporation recognized as collective bargaining agent after last winter's long strike seige.

The contract between the corporation and the union expires March 1. Terms for a new contract, tentatively reached after weeks of negotiations, were rejected by union representatives from all G. M. plants over the week-end, making it necessary to re-open negotiations.

County Joins In Attack on Fund 'Match'

Commissioners Oppose Davey Relief Plan at State Meeting.

Called to Columbus yesterday to consider the growing relief problem, Richland county commissioners joined other county boards in the state in opposing Gov. Martin L. Davey's plan for a matching of state funds by the counties and subdivisions.

The plan along with a number of others, will be presented to the Ohio legislature when it convenes in special session Nov. 29.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the Richland county board, said the majority of the commissioners at the meeting expressed the opinion that counties are not financially able to assume half of the relief load. The Davey proposal would require the state's sub-divisions to provide $7,500,000 next year to match a similar amount to come from the state.

Favor Advance.

Representing about three-fourths of the Ohio counties, commissioners looked with favor on the suggestion advanced by the municipalities which calls for $12,000,000 from the state as against $4,000,000 from the subdivisions.

"Commissioners from a number of the smaller counties with a rural population were of the opinion that their townships would be able to handle the relief burden during the winter without a county set-up," Mitchell said.

The majority of Richland county townships have provided their own relief funds since last spring, but Mansfield, Madison township and Shelby are under a county director and receive their funds direct from the state in the form of sales tax allocations.

With about $11,000 in the relief fund, the county has enough money for less than two months at the present rate of expenditure for direct poor relief, commissioners said.

Sheriff Jay McKeever said that Godwin came to his office last night with his brother, Frank, and said he had shot his wife when she came to his house from Lakeview with Kenneth Leasure, 19, and Charles McDonald, 16, to get some clothing

Authorities said the couple had been estranged. They were informed that Godwin came out of the house with a gun when an automobile drove up. Mrs Godwin got out of the car and then started to run back She was shot in the back

FARMER SAVED AS NEIGHBORS SINK SHAFT

Sides of 100-Year-Old Well Cave In and Form Wedge, Trapping Morrow Man.

HELD PRISONER 3 HOURS

Falling Stones Form Roof Over 22-Foot Shaft; Rescuers Dig Into Sides.

Trapped when the sides of a 100-year-old well caved in yesterday afternoon, William Denman, 54, Morrow county farmer, was saved from death by 30 neighbors who dug a trench into the side of the shaft.

Working in shifts of seven men, the neighbors burrowed into the well as Denman, held prisoner by falling cobblestones, shouted instructions.

At 5 p. m., about three hours after the accident occurred, Denman was removed from the 22-foot shaft, suffering from shock and strained arm muscles.

South of Chesterville.

The Denman farm is located two and a half miles southeast of Chesterville.

Like he has on many occasions, Denman entered the well early yesterday afternoon to drive a pipe down in an effort to obtain more water. George Renner, a farm hand, was working at the top.

Denman was standing on two stones 16 feet down when the cave-in happened. The cobblestone sides wedged together as they fell, forming a roof over Denman and shutting out all daylight. At the same time, part of the ground and stones fell to the bottom of the well, covering up the water.

Denman was standing on the debris when he was rescued three hours later.

Neighbors Bring Shovels.

Renner ran to the house to tell Mrs. Denman and then summoned neighbors. A half hour later, men from nearby farms, armed with picks and shovels started digging.

Because of the precarious condition of the stone roof over Denman which threatened to give way at any time, they de-

School Strikers Seeking Ouster Of Board Member

RISING SUN, Ind.—(AP)—High school pupils, entering the third day of a strike from classroom work to win reinstatement of a dismissed janitor, carried their fight to parents today.

Petitions asking for the removal of Paul Rump from the school board were circulated by the group aroused over the discharge Friday of Cassius Dugle. Spokesmen for the pupils said they obtained the advice of a prominent Lawrenceburg attorney and were promised the support of business men in their campaign.

In the background of the strike of 75 pupils was a political quarrel.

"John Dugle, father of the janitor," commented Rump, "is a Democratic precinct committeeman. I'd had the auto license bureau here for six years. John Dugle and others petitioned Don Stivers (state safety director) and I lost the bureau. . . . the board vote was unanimous."

E V. Menefee, a Republican board member, asserted that he was "neutral" in the issue and did not vote.

REVEAL CUBAN MURDER PLOT

Secret Police Frustrate Plan to Assassinate Military Leader, Claim.

HAVANA — (UP) — Secret police have asserted that they had discovered a plot to assassinate Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of staff of the army and "strong man" of Cuba, and a number of other national leaders.

A secret organization called the revolutionary legion was held to be sponsor for the plot, and it was announced that Carlos Perez, 34 and Antonio Dominguez, had been arrested. Police asserted that both were Legion members.

Police said they discovered the plot after a raid on a residence in which, in addition to documents, they seized 17 rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

It was alleged that the new legion was formed by radical members of the Cuban youth organization, which police dissolved as a "terroristic" organization several months ago.

According to police, members of the new legion intended to kill Batista by attaching a dynamite bomb to an automobile. Police asserted also that arms had been smuggled into Cuba for terrorists from Mexico, where, they said, leaders of the legion were directing the plot.

QUINTUPLETS HAVE $500,000 IN LIQUID ASSETS, DAFOE SAYS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets have a half million dollars in liquid assets, Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, their medical guardian, has disclosed.

And at 3 years and 5 months, they care nothing at all about money—never ask for a nickel or dime.

Dr. Dafoe, here for a vacation, said it might be more than ten years before they reach the millionaire stage, "because their expenses will be greater from now on."

At the end of their first year, the quintuplets had $8,000 in the bank, their assets are invested in bonds in the Province of Ontario.

They not only are self-supporting, but contribute $100 a month to their family, and in three or four years, probably will pay for a school to be built on their nursery ground.

It costs between $1,600 and $1,800 a month to maintain the five girls, their nursery and staff, Dr. Dafoe said. This includes the salary of two nurses, one teacher, a housekeeper, two maids, three guards for the grounds and a janitor. Dr. Dafoe draws a salary of $200 a month as medical guardian.

Mama and Papa Dionne and the other six children will have Christmas dinner with the quints, but there'll be no turkey for the five sisters—no ice cream or candy.

They've never tasted these dainties. Their nearest approach to ice cream has been frozen mousse.

Dr. Dafoe said one or two of the sisters had "a few doubts" about Santa Claus, because they pulled off his whiskers last year and thought they recognized him.

He's bought his Christmas gift for them—a white pottery plaque of the virgin and child.

Pittsburgh Tops National Ratings

Prof. Williamson Only Expert to Place Panthers Below California In Weekly Standings.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

EXPERTS denying the powerful Pittsburgh Panthers the No. 1 spot in the national football ratings this fall are in the minority. It is noted that Walter L. Johns, Central Press expert; Dick Poling, Mansfield football mathematician, and the Associated Press rank Pitt on top. The only dessenter among the rankings so far this week is Prof. Williamson, famed inventor of the ranking craze, who has elevated California to first place, with Pittsburgh a notch in the rear.

To be a truly great pitcher the close games have to be won, it seems. Records show that Walter Johnson and Grover Alexander each won 40 1 to 0 games during their lengthy major league careers. Christy Mathewson, also a pretty good pitcher, by the way, chalked up 35 1-0 decisions.

Jack Manders' kicking ability has cost the Chicago Bears some money. Since 1933 when the former Minnesota star joined the Bears, Manders has kicked 35 balls over the north wall of Wrigley field while trying for extra points and field goals. Field attendants are unable to retrieve the pigskins once they clean the wall. Neighborhood kids nab 'em as fast as they come over. Bear officials figure Manders' boots have cost them around $300 in footballs. But they're not kicking as long as his boots continue to help the Bears.

Mississippi State College Presents Regular Circus at Grid Games.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN'S "swing" band has drawn a lot of newspaper space this fall, but the "best sideline show of them all" is presented by Mississippi State college. The Mississippi school's intermission program include a co-ed dancing trio, five cheerleaders, three boys and two girls, all amateur acrobats: Homp Potts, freshman halfback, who punts and placekicks barefoot, and "Bully," an English bulldog mascot, who stunts. Better than a circus, they say.

Iowa has won only two Big Ten games at home since its stadium was dedicated in 1929. Perhaps it needs a new stadium.

A rule curbing the foward fumble will be among those proposed at the winter meeting of the football rules committee, and there will be few complaints if the play is eliminated. The forward fumble is the fumble in which the ball goes toward the defending team's goal. If the attacking team recovers, a substantial gain results. A recent game in the east was won by a forward fumble over the goal line. Coaches complain of the luck involved by which a team can make a deliberate fumble and gain a benefit. They complain because the error of fumbling is not sufficiently penalized. It was this type of fumble which the Western Reserve freshmen attempted against Mansfield this year. John Kinkel intercepted the ball before it went out-of-bounds, however, and the speedy Tyger would have scored on the play had he not fumbled in the clear near midfield.

Bob Evans, Al Veigel First Members of Red Sox Family to Return for Visit.

THE FIRST visit of Mansfield Red Sox baseball personalities to the city since the close of the season was made this week. Al Veigel, right-handed pitching star of Tuscarawas, dropped in to the News-Journal office for a brief chat on his return from Lima on a hunting trip. Al failed to get the limit. Business Manager Bob Evans was another visitor. Bob dropped in town to check over the books with President Frank A. Voegele. Bob had nothing to say about another Boston-Mansfield tie-up next year, however.

Recommended for tired nerves: A hockey game in the new million dollar Arena in Cleveland. Witnessing our first game in the new ice palace last night, we were greatly impressed. Not only with the Arena, but also the Cleveland Barons, who show possibilities of providing citizens of this area a winning brand of hockey this season. The Barons dropped a close, hard-fought 4 to 3 decision to the New York Rangers, who appeared in the Stanley Cup play-off last spring, and lost no prestige by holding the strong National league club to four goals.

18 Tygers to Sing "Swan Song" In Ashland Contest Saturday

SATURDAY'S concluding game of the season with Ashland at Stadium field will mark the final appearance of 18 Mansfield high school athletes in scholastic grid livery.

Of course, a number will wear Tyger attire in basketball and track before they receive their "sheepskins" in June, but none will return for another football season.

The senior group this year is one of the largest lost in football in the history of the school, and the absence of the majority will be greatly felt next season when Coach J. Russell Murphy assembles his team for the difficult 1938 campaign.

Included among the seniors is Johnny Hallabrin, captain and backfield star of the Tygers. Hallabrin will close one of the most brilliant grid careers in the history of M. H. S. Saturday.

A member of the squad three years, Hallabrin has been particularly outstanding the last two years. He led the state in scoring last fall, and is certain to be among the leaders again this year, if not right at the top.

Hallabrin is only one of nine first-string members of this year's once-defeated team who will graduate. Warren Rupp, a guard, and Rich Nagle, a back, are the only first-stringers who will return.

Dan Stehle, Elmer Dials, and Harold Luckie, who have seen heavy duty at the ends this fall, will graduate. Their loss will be keenly felt.

Barney Adams, truly an unsung hero, will also be among the missing in 1938. The diminutive Adams has been one of the outstanding members of the Mansfield line at a guard this year.

Both of the regular tackles, Daryl Heiser and John Horvath, will make their farewell appearance Saturday. Coach Murphy regards Heiser and Horvath as two of the finest tackles ever to grace any of his teams.

Bud Zeigler, first-string center, will also sing his "swan song" Saturday. One of the biggest members of the line, Zeigler was also one of the outstanding units in probably the strongest forward wall ever developed at Mansfield high.

In addition to Hallabrin, the backfield seniors include John Kinkel, Joe Majoy and Paul Bailet. All thre performed splendidly in their appearances this fall. Kinkel's ball carrying was a feature of many of the games, and the blocking of Majoy and Bailet was a major factor in the success of the current season.

Other seniors who saw less duty than those mentioned are Ray Bowersock, Ed Duncan, Earl Deems, Karl Korokney, William Baker, Robert Hamilton and Robert Hammett.

They were cast in substitute credit for the part they played in roles, but they deserve plenty of the success of the 1937 season.

League Scoring Race Also To Be Decided in Mt. Gilead

Weller Only One Point Ahead of Harmon on Eve of Title Game.

THE INDIVIDUAL scoring championship as well as the Mid-State league title will be at stake in Mt. Gilead Friday afternoon when Madison and Mt. Gilead bring their respective campaigns to a close.

Gene Harmon, Madison backfield ace, and Gayle Weller, Mt. Gilead star, will decide their scoring battle in the all-important game.

One Point Ahead.

Weller is the present leader with 54 points, but his advantage consists of merely a point after touchdown. Both have scored the same number of touchdowns, but the Mt. Gilead back has accounted for one more conversion.

Mt. Gilead has another contender for the scoring title in Quarterback Kubbs, who has tallied 45 points, but the spotlight Friday will be focused on Harmon and Weller, two of the finest backs in Ohio Class B circles.

Reports from the camps today indicated that the two rivals are rarin' to get into action. This is the "big game" each year for both clubs, and it was not difficult for either Al Fendrick or Carl Hopkins coaches of Madison and Mt. Gilead, respectively, to prepare their charges for the tussle.

Both the Rams and Indians tapered off with light signal drills at their respective fields today for the game which is expected to attract the largest Mid-State league crowd of the season.

In addition to attempting to retain their title, the Rams will be seeking to keep their record unmarred. Madison is one of the few undefeated and untied elevens in Ohio scholastic circles this fall.

As both clubs pack considerable power in their backfields, it is likely that the game will result into a fierce battle of offenses. The Rams and Indians also pack deception in their air games, but few gambles will be taken in this game.

Permits Three Scores.

The Mansfield eleven sports the most formidable defensive record. Only three touchdowns have been scored against the Rams, but the Indians' line has also held up well against stiff competition.

The Mt. Gilead forwards made their most brilliant stand of the season when they held Marion Harding to a scoreless tie.

Mt. Gilead has only two marks on its record. In addition to the tie with Marion, which the Indians can consider a moral victory, Mt. Gilead was beaten by Bucyrus, 33 to 0.

The probable lineups for Friday's game follow:

OUTPOINTS BATTAGLIA

NEW YORK—Solly Kreiger, 163, New York, outpointed Frankie Battaglia, 163, Winnipeg, Man., (10).

BROWN RE-ELECTED HEAD OF CHURCH ASSOCIATION

Francis Brown was re-elected president of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday School Athletic association at a meeting held at the 'Y' last night. C. W. Rayburn was re-elected vice president, and Norman Lerner, secretary.

Plans for the basketball season were also completed at the meeting. Eight teams are entered in the Class A league, which opens Dec. 1, 11 in Class B, which opens Nov. 30 and six in Class C, which opens Dec. 4.

Teams entered in the Class A circuit are First M. E., First Lutheran, Episcopal, Mayflower, Baptist, Central M. E., Temple Emanuel and St. Johns. The Class B entrants include First M. E., First Lutheran, United Brethren, Mayflower, Baptist, Central M. E., First Presbyterian, St. Johns, Christian, Temple Emanuel and South Main.

First M. E., First Lutheran, United Presbyterian, First Presbyterian, Catholic Foresters and South Main will be represented in the Class C league.

Coach J. Russell Murphy of Mansfield high school conducted a rules interpretation meeting following the business session.

Set New Record

Oldsmobiles Pound Out 1074 Game as They Lead Scoring In City League.

DOUG MILLER'S Oldsmobiles established a new record to annex scoring laurels in the City Class A league at the Meder alleys last night.

The Oldsmobiles blasted out a 1074 in their last game to better the former record of 1036 set by the Lumbermens Mutuals earlier in the season.

The big game enabled the Oldsmobiles to set the team pace with a 2929 total, which was good for a pair of victories over the Roma Lunch.

Art Hilborn was the chief menace for the Oldsmobiles with a 677, which topped the individuals. Hilborn put together scores of 201, 222 and 254. Sonny Meder contributed a 611.

The Liederkranz club pounded out a 2869 to take a pair of decisions from the Lumbermens Mutuals. Schmidt led the Mutuals with a 611. The Metcalfe Pure Oils pounded 2824 sticks to the pits to sweep their match with the Meder Recreation.

Farrell Hipp starred for the Pure Oils with a 658. Hipp got off to a bad start, but finished with games of 250 and 244.

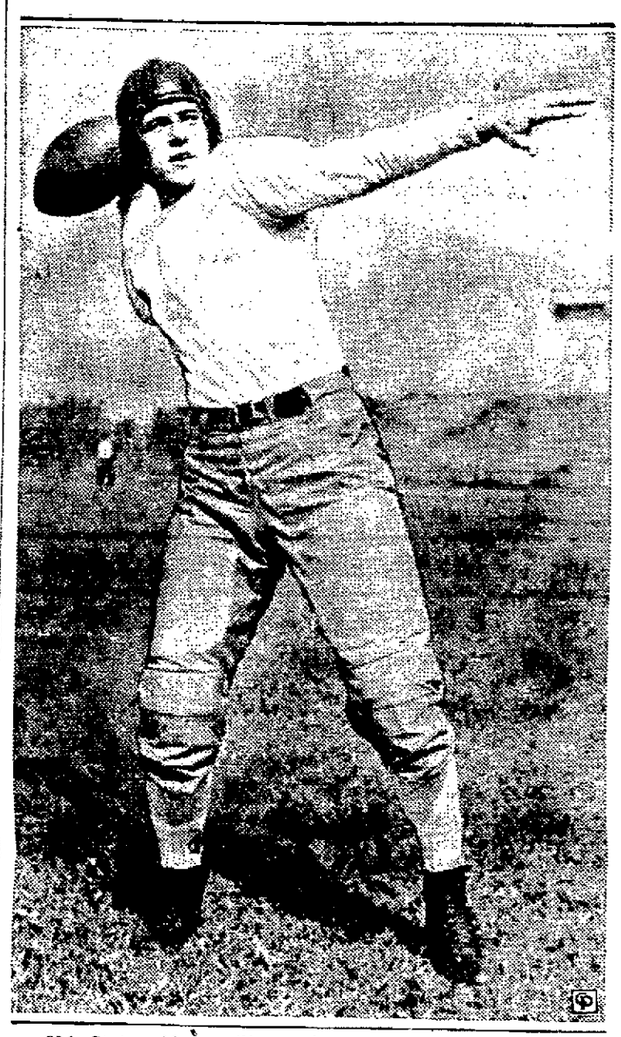
HE'S AIMING FOR OHIO



Ohio State gridmen will see a lot of this fellow Saturday when the Bucks renew their rivalry with Michigan in Ann Arbor. He's Fred Trosko, one of the finest backs in the Wolverine backfield. In addition to his ball carrying ability, Fred is one of the best passers on the club.

STRATTON, ACHIU VIE

Walter Stratton, powerful and popular farmer boy from Leetonia, one of the finest young light heavyweight wrestlers that has ever set foot in a Mansfield ring, has been signed to appear in one of the two headline matches on next Monday night's wrestling program scheduled for the Armory.

Stratton will face Walter "Sneeze" Achiu, the clever little Hawaiian 175 pounder, in a two best out of there falls contest with an hour and a half time limit.

The potentialities of this contest are unlimited. Both Stratton and Achiu are of the fast, clever, sensational type so popular with local sports fans and a brilliant contest is likely when they go to the mat.

Matchmaker Tim Noaln is now seeking another good light heavyweight match and both contests will be part of the light heavyweight tournament which he is now conducting here and to the winner of which will go a shot at the world's 175 pound champion.

RAMS BOAST ONE OF FIVE BEST CLASS B RECORDS

Mansfield Madison is one of only five undefeated, untied Class B high school elevens in Ohio, and the Rams, incidentally, are the only unbeaten ensemble still in play. Madison seeks its eighth straight victory at Mt. Gilead Friday.

The other undefeated Class B elevens are Upper Arlington, Bergholz of Jefferson county, Liberty Center of Henry county and Granville of Licking county.

Only four Class A teams are undefeated and untied. They are Canton McKinley, Youngstown East, Wellston and Columbus West.

Rams May Get Rose Bowl Bid

PASADENA, Cal. —(U.P.)—The Pacific Coast had a hunch today that Fordham's Rams will line up against the pick of the Pacific Coast in the Rose Bowl football classic New Year's day.

The feeling is certain to grow stronger daily unless Jim Crowley's team is defeated by St. Mary's Saturday or by New York university the following week-end. The Rams are heavy favorites to win both games.

Fordham, Pittsburgh and Alabama are the three top candidates for the eastern bid but the sheer power of the latter pair may turn sentiment against them. The west is not looking for another beating.

As the feature attraction of Pasadena's annual Tournament of Roses, the game is expected to provide nation-wide publicity and the choice of an eastern team is an important factor in getting it. Pitt and Alabama each have made four trips to the bowl, and most experts feel neither will get the nod for the fifth excursion this year.

Ruth May Be Offered Hollywood Managership.

HOLLYWOOD —(U P)— Rumors Babe Ruth would be offered the managership of the new Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league were current today, although Don Francisco, president, was non-committal.

It was feared Ruth's salary demand might be too high. Francisco said he had "several men in mind," and it was believed Walter Mails, publicity manager of the San Francisco Seals and long prominent in Coast league baseball, would be second choice.

Joe Louis Is Itching To Pull on Ring Togs.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Joe Louis is just itching to pull on his ring togs, after a layoff of ten weeks, "just to get the feel of boxing again."

The world's heavyweight champion said so today, but he won't have his craving satisfied until next Monday when he will start a ten-day span of gymnasium work. Louis will not fight until next February when he expects to make a defense of his title against a challenger in New York, but he is anxious to sharpen his punching eye, after being idle since defeating Tommy Farr in their 15-round bout Aug. 30.

SPECIALS EDGE HIGHER IN SLOW STOCK SESSION

List Loafs From Start, Volume Exceptionally Small Near Second Hour.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A few specialties edged forward in today's stock market, but declining trends were conspicious in other departments.

The list loafed from the start and volume was exceptionally small near the second hour.

Brokers said customers found little inspiring in the immediate news, although hopelessness of tax revision by the present special session of congress appeared to be growing.

Bonds were uneven. Commodities, including yesterday's strong wheat futures, slanted downward.

In the matter of building material shares, observers pointed out that residential construction contracts awarded during the next two months probably will reflect sharper declines from the preceding year's levels because of the high rate of activity maintained in the corresponding 1936 periods.

Studying the problem of inventories, analysts noted government figures disclosing stocks held by manufacturers and department stores for the fall of this year reflected greater gains over 1936 than were shown by 1929 holdings compared with those of 1928.

BLAST SINKS ITALIAN SHIP

Crew Takes To Lifeboats In English Channel.

LONDON—(AP)—Lloyd's, the underwriting agency, reported that an explosion in the hold of the Italian freighter Boccaccio sank the 3,027-ton vessel in the English channel today.

The crew took to lifeboats and all apparently were saved, Lloyd's said.

The British freighter Burnham had relayed to the Land's End radio station a message from the Boccaccio and the Italian ship's position and adding "please send assistance."

The Dutch motor vessel Tavandoem later wirelessed that it had reached the Boccaccio and that "the men are safe."

LOOT MANSION

Thieves Get $20,000 In Raid on Movie Producer's Home.

HOLLYWOOD—(U.P.)—A $20,000 burglary of the mansion of Louis D. Lighton, motion picture producer, was reported by police early today.

The home was ransacked of jewelry, furs and silver. To carry away their loot, the burglars stole an expensive automobile owned by George Templeton, also a producer and a friend of Lighton.

Lighton makes pictures for Paramount Studio. Among his recent films was "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

Lighton and Templeton were at work at the movie studio, but servants were in the house. The servants were in their rooms and said they did not hear the burglars.

NATIVES FLEE METEOR'S PATH

Slashed 30-Mile Path In Jungle, Explorer Says.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana—(AP)—How a meteor slashed a 30-mile path through the forest-clad Marudi mountains and jungle 300 miles from Georgetown was described over field radio last night by Dr. William Holden, leader of an American museum of natural history expedition.

The meteor's destruction of huge trees and shrubbery terrorized the expedition's Indian porters, who believed the gods were displeased with the white men's visit. They threatened to desert, Holden said.

Nevertheless, he hoped to explore the area where the meteor fell, some 10 miles from a place named Camshock.

An "OLD STORY" to millions of other smokers, too

SAY, TOM - WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE IS WRONG WITH THESE CIGARS? THE FIRST HALF IS O.K. THEN THEY GET BITTER, BITEY AND RASPY. THIS IS THE THIRD I'VE THROWN AWAY TODAY.
THAT'S AN OLD STORY TO ME, BILL. I HAD THE SAME TROUBLE UNTIL A FRIEND TOLD ME ABOUT PHILLIES. TRY ONE. YOU WON'T THROW THIS CIGAR AWAY. IT SIMPLY CAN'T BE BITTER OR BITEY.
HERE'S THE STORY IN THIS NEWSPAPER, BILL. IT SHOWS HOW BAYUK, THROUGH AN EXCLUSIVE PROCESS, TAKES THE BITTERNESS AND BITE OUT OF THE PHILLIES TOBACCOS. IT'S A GREAT IDEA···AND IT SURE WORKS.
TOM, THAT BAYUK PROCESS CERTAINLY DOES THE JOB. HAVEN'T FOUND A TRACE OF BITTER, BITEY TASTE IN THIS PHILLIES. NOW I CAN REALLY ENJOY A CIGAR AGAIN AND SAVE MONEY IN THE BARGAIN.

WHY PHILLIES ARE FREE OF BITTER, BITEY, RASPY TASTE

Bayuk selects and buys for PHILLIES the finest and mildest types of Havana, Domestic and Sumatra tobaccos. They are the very pick of the crops.

All PHILLIES tobaccos are aged and mellowed for at least two years—and are cured by the same methods used in making the most expensive cigars . . . BUT BAYUK DOESN'T STOP HERE.

Bayuk owns an exclusive, patented process that removes the bitter oils and harsh elements that ordinary curing methods don't, and can't, get out. No other cigar manufacturer can use this process.

WORLD UPSWING IN TRADE RIDES ON U. S. BUYING

Rapid Recovery In Quantity Reported For First Half Year's Period.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United States is leading the way in rapid recovery of world trade, according to a survey just completed by the department of agriculture.

The survey prepared by department economist R. B. Schwenger disclosed an "abrupt rise in the quantity of world trade during the first half of 1937."

An index prepared by department economists showed world trade during the second quarter of this year equal to that of 1929. The index for the last quarter of 1936 was at 87 per cent of 1929.

Raw Imports Important.

"A detailed analysis shows an important part of the increase has been due to United States imports of a wide variety of commodities, esepecially of such raw materials as rubber and wool," Schwenger said.

World trade had lagged far behind world industrial production since 1932, the economist said, due to the increase in trade barriers during the depression. He suggested these barriers must be relaxed or removed before complete recovery can take place.

In recent months, due to partial relaxation of trade barriers, world trade has been increasing much more rapidly than world industrial production. If the rise continues, Schwenger said, the two indices may be expected to be at the same level before the end of the year.

Armament Spurs Trade.

Explaining the 'complex causes" of increased world trade. Schwenger pointed to increased activity connected with rearmament in a number of important countries, the relaxation of trade barriers and the rise in export prices

Less than half of the increased trade may be attributed to rearmament programs, he said. Japan, Germany, Italy and Great Britain, where rearmament requirements were a major factor in international trade, accounted for only 39 per cent of the increased world trade between the last half of 1936 and the first half of this year, Schwenger said.

France, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia accounted for an additional 10 per cent of the increase. The remainder was due to increased imports by Canada, United States, Argentina, India, British Malaya, Belgium, Denmark, Australia, Netherlands, Sweden and the Union of South Africa, Schwenger said.

Land of Honey Again Beckons To Bee Keeper

PEMBROKE, N. Y. — (U.P.) — John N. DeMuth, credited with being the first migrating bee keeper, is making his sixth trip to the orange groves of Florida with his bee colonies, confident that the losses of the "poorest honey harvest in Western New York since 1913" will be recouped.

DeMuth and his son, Jourdain, take the bees south by truck. They plan to make two trips, taking 300 colonies. He expects to bring back in the spring between 700 and 800 colonies.

The bee truck makes the run with no stops except those to refuel. A half hour stop, DeMuth explained, would mean heavy losses, because the truck vibration keeps the bees quiet while a lengthy stop causes them to jam against the screens of the hives.

DeMuth said the grove owners in the orange country welcome "tramp" bee keepers.

"Florida bees are dormant in the winter and the northern bees are valuable in pollinating the trees," DeMoth pointed out.

HELD HEIRESS TO FATHER'S ESTATE

Daughter to Inherit Thousands as Nurse Loses Suit.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Mrs. Nellie Gottschalt Kazar, daughter of the late Henry C. Gottschalt, is the undisputed heir to her father's $300,000 to $500,000 estate.

The claim of Irene Ruth Miller, 42, Chardon nurse who claimed she was Gottschalt's common-law wife and that the wealthy manufacturer was the father of her 13-year-old son, was dismissed in Geauga county probate court.

The journal entry permitted Mrs. Kazar to pay Mrs. Miller $1,450 and her son $300 in settlement of their claims, depriving them of further appeal.

Mrs. Kazar's father, president of the East Shore Machine Products Co., was killed last December enroute to Florida.

Glenn L. Bierly, chairman of the Richland county Republican executive committee, arraigned in a justice of the peace court in Wooster yesterday afternoon, pleaded guilty to a charge of passing a school bus while unloading passengers on the highway and was assessed the costs of the case.

Mansfield police served the warrant from the Wayne county on Bierly Tuesday. It charged that he passed the bus while it was stopped on route 30 between Jeffersonville and Reedsburg. Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe signed Bierly's recognizance bond Tuesday.

USE OF TRAILERS EXPANDS TO INCLUDE POLICE DEPARTMENTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (INS) —Dentists' offices, police stations and a variety of services are housed in trailers these days, according to Todd Stoops, secretary-manager of the Hoosier Motor club.

Instances also have been reported of trailers used as a restaurant, prospector's supply wagon, motion picture theater, telegraph office and cathedral.

"The police station on wheels is an outstanding example of the trailer's flexibility in meeting specialized needs," Stoops said. "This trailer has been put into operation on Long Island and is completely equipped to give first aid or to serve as a base in investigating crime. A veritable arsenal, the trailer carries a machine gun, rifles, tear gas bombs and equipment for scientific crime detction, including finger-printing apparatus, magnifying glasses and test tubes."

The prospector's supply wagon has an assay furnace, diamond drills and carries enough supplies to feed the wandering miner for a year or so.

In the traveling dentist's office are a waiting room, a laboratory for making artificial teeth and inlays, and an operating room with hot and cold running water. It also is air-cooled and the waiting room is sound-proofed.

"Perhaps the housewife of the future may be able to do her banking, buy the groceries, get a beauty treatment, drink a soda and go to the movies without leaving her front driveway," Stoops said.

Three hundred non-alcoholic drinks will be tested at a conference in Berlin of the Manufacturers of Unfermented Fruit Juices

BOYS BURN CROSSES

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Eight small boys confessed that they had built and burned the fiery crosses which caused rumors of Ku-Klux Klan activity in suburban Shaker Heights.

SOLVES PROBLEM

Youth Builds House for $60 to Save Room Rent.

LAWRENCE, Kan. —(INS)— Room rent is not going to bother Ralph Reber, 19-year-old farm boy, while he attends Kansas university here. With the aid of his father he has built himself a 7 by 14 foot house at a cost of $60. It is made so it can be put on wheels and converted into a trailer should Reber decide to move. He intends to live in it during his four-year stay here—and also plans to take in a roomer.

ROAD BLOCKED AS CHEROKEES AND U. S. SPAR

Indians Fearing For Barter Right Along Blue Ridge Highway In Carolina.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(U.P.)—The Cherokee Indians are making a last stand against the federal government.

In this instance they are refusing to barter their rights for a parkway in Western North Carolina. The Indians want to squat along the Blue Ridge Parkway and sell bead and pottery, and the government wants a right-of-way with easements.

The issue in the controversy hinges on the government's demand for control of 400 feet of land on each side of the parkway. The Indians would provide the land for the actual right-of-way entering the Great Smoky Park today, but they fear loss of "squatter rights" on each side of the parkway.

Defy Chieftain.

Chief Jarrett Blythe urged his tribe to give the land for the parkway and the "easements." Instead, the tribesmen have followed the leadership of their vice-chief Fred Bauer. While National Park service has agreed to permit the Indians to keep on farming their land along the parkway all the way up to the construction line, even though "easements" are granted, they have been told by Bauer that if they grant easements for 400 feet on each side of the proposed right-of-way, the federal government at any time can force them out of this area; prevent them from selling their trinkets and handicrafts along the highway, and even prevent them from using the parkway with their cars, trucks, and wagons.

Indians Not Reassured.

The park service, the Indian Bureau, the Department of the Interior and even the North Carolina State Highway commission for more than three years have been trying to convince the Indians that they would not be deeding away any of their lands or forfeiting any of their rights.

The park service has even agreed to build the Cherokees a large and completely equipped trading post where they could sell their native handicrafts to tourists on a co-operative basis. It also has offered to build a hotel on the reservation which would offer employment and profit to more Indians. An exchange of land was suggested under which the Indians would be given some 1,500 acres of good, fertile land now in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in exchange for the 1,200 acres needed for the parkway.

AUTOIST FAILS TO STOP, FINED

Assessed $30 and Costs, License Revoked for 15 Days.

Failure to stop after an accident today had cost a Mansfield man a fine and his right to operate his automobile for 15 days.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday, Joseph Thompson, Garden acres, pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $30 and costs and his drivers' license was suspended for 15 days.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $20 of the fine on the condition that Thompson pay the damage to the other car involved in the collision that occurred Sunday night on Olivesburg road near the reformatory.

PREVENT WARS?

Ohioan Says P. R. Plan Would Have Kept Peace in Spain.

CINCINNATI —(U.P.)— Spain's bloody civil war might have been avoided, John H. Humphreys, scholar contends, had proportional representation been used in that country.

Humphreys, "P. R." advocate who came here from New York recently where he watched the metropolis' first proportional representation election, claimed the Spanish "rebellion" resulted because of dissatisfaction among a large majority which lacked representation.

"The minority was discontented and finally rebelled," he said. "Had P. R. been in effect, the minority would have been given a voice in government and I don't believe then that there would have been a revolution.

BOTH PARTIES END CAMPAIGN WITH BALANCES

Democrats Report $773 Left After Spending $2,068; G. O. P. Has $135.

Financially, both the Democratic and Republican parties came through the last municipal campaign "in the black" their reports to the board of elections revealed today.

Both parties reported balances, one of the few times this has occured in recent years. The Democrats have a balance of $773 while the Republicans' nest egg is $135, the reports showed, although the difference in their expenses amounted to only $3.

Expenditures totaling $2,068 are listed in the report filed by James F. Carrigan, Democratic campaign treasurer, while the G. O. P. report showed expenses amounting to $2,065.

The Democratic receipts totaled $2,842 as against $2,200 for the Republicans.

Mayor Contributes $570.

The largest individual contribution to either fund was made by Mayor Earl A. McFarland, who donated $570 to the G. O. P. cause. Others among the major contributors to the Republican fund were F. B. Black, $100; C. K. King, $100 and Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, $45.

On the Democratic side, the courthouse employes as a unit contributed $955 to the campaign, while the county jail attaches put $160 into the fund, the report showed.

Final individual expense reports filed by candidates showed that Karl P. Troll, successful Democratic candidate for president of council, spent $46 as compared with $35 by his opponent, A. O. Widders, Republican.

Labor's Non-partisan league, which backed Paul R. Spencer and Thomas A. Williams for the Mansfield board of education, submitted a report showing expenditures of $32 in behalf of the two candidates. The report to the election board was filed by Atty. George W. Biddle, secretary of the labor group.

Other reports filed by council candidates were: George C. Kyle, Republican, re-elected in the Third ward, $28; Henry A. Beilstein, Democrat, Third ward, $27; Harry M. Emmons, Democrat, elected as councilman-at-large, $31; and Russell D. Porch, Republican, re-elected in the First ward, $7.

PRISON PAY DAY QUITE AN EVENT

Convicts Paid In Pennies to Avoid Traffic In Old Coins Smuggled In.

PLYMOUTH, Eng.—(U.P.)—Three hundred convicts in Dartmoor prison, most famous in the world, have received their first payment under the new system of wages for men in penal servitude.

To avoid traffic in old coins which might be smuggled into prison, the men were paid in 1937 pennies. Many of them were handling money for the first time since their imprisonment, and some broke down and wept.

The previous night a provision van, packed with the little luxuries the convicts were allowed to buy, arrived in the outer courtyard of the prison. When the convicts orders were opened it was found nearly 90 per cent of them had asked for tobacco and pipes. So 250 cherrywood pipes and several pounds of twist and shag were delivered, and soon the smell of coarse tobacco filled the cells.

Men can now smoke anywhere in the prison, except in chapel, and one or two other prohibited areas. But as 70 per cent of them will receive less than 12 cents a week, they will have to make an ounce of tobacco, even at 14 cents, go a long way.

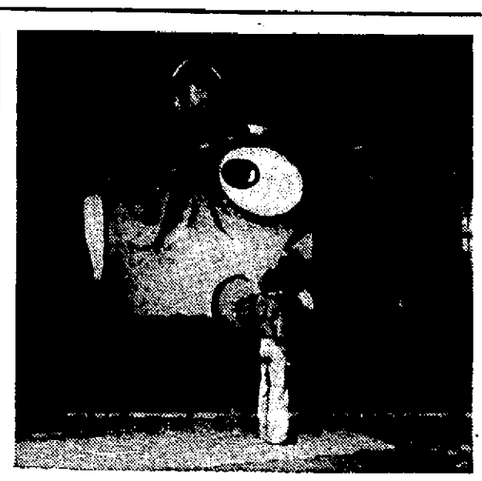
RUBBER DOLLS:

Helium-Filled Thanksgiving Paraders Can Look A Skyscraper In The Eye

UNDER CONSTRUCTION

This is Pinocchio, fairy tale hero whose nose grew longer every time he told a lie. He will march in Macy's annual Thanksgiving parade in New York. As he marches, more and more gas will be pumped in until his nose grows 44 feet long.



FINAL CHECK-UP

Among Pinocchio's companions in the parade will be this 63-foot policeman. His head is shown here as it gets a once-over from a workman at the rubber goods factory in Akron where the giant rubber dolls are made. Buoyed by helium, the grotesque figures are pulled through the streets on ropes manned by ground crews. Tony Sarg designs them.

ON REVIEW

This picture of a two-headed giant swinging down Broadway in last year's parade shows how the big dolls stand up to New York's buildings. This year there will be 21 float and balloon units as well as costumed marchers. Besides Pinocchio and the big cop, there will be "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze" and a scene from "Alice In Wonderland."

THIRST CALLED HEADACHE EASE

Regulate Water Consumption and It'll Help, Claim of Chemistry Expert.

CORVALLIS, Ore.—(U.P.)—A simple preventive for migraine (nervous, sick) headaches is believed to have been discovered by Frank K. Thompson, an Oregon State college graduate student in chemistry.

The secret of Thompson's method, he told members of the Oregon section of the American Chemical Society, is merely to regulate the amount of water or liquid that the sufferer drinks and to maintain a constant borderline thirst.

Eight years ago, at the age of 21, when Thompson had severe headaches, he was informed that he had an incurable affliction which might disappear by the time he reached middle age. It was then that he began to collect data regarding the attacks and attempted to co-ordinate his findings. He is now confident that he has found in what has been termed "water inbalance" the key to the cause and prevention of the distressing malady.

He offers the following suggestions to headache sufferers:

Keep on the border of thirst all the time.

Do not drink large quantities of fluid at any time, particularly not before a cool night when perspiration is diminished.

If you feel an attack coming on, wrap yourself up in the warmest available spot and sweat it out—you may be able to avert an attack.

Share In a Necessary Work.

WITH its annual rollcall nearing an end, it is interesting to note that in the past year of its ministrations the American Red Cross was called upon to help victims of 128 disasters. Floods, fires, earthquakes, tornadoes, epidemics are the natural catastrophes in which the Red Cross gives not only first aid but continuing aid until the need is over.

Within the last year or two it has added to its services that of traffic first aid, establishing 1,223 stations along the country's main highways, with attendants always in readiness to help victims of motor accidents.

In addition to its special relief work, the Red Cross carries on regularly an educational program which trains many individuals in first aid, home nursing, hygiene, life-saving, and so on. The Junior Red Cross, in particular, is teaching future citizens how to protect their own health, to avoid accidents and to give the right sort of help when emergencies arise.

This is the time of year—Armistice day to Thanksgiving—when the Red Cross calls the roll, asking old members to respond again and new ones to join in this great humanitarian enterprise. Last year there were more than 12,000,000 enrolled members. The number should be increased.

Another Case of 'What's In a Name.'

AN INTERESTING case, being appealed to the state supreme court from Richland county, may serve to establish the line of demarcation—if any—between a "restaurant" and a "saloon", as these establishments are being conducted under Ohio methods of liquor-handling.

In this instance a woman who operates a "tavern" in Mansfield, is under 90-day workhouse sentence, following conviction in probate court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The specific charge on which the woman was convicted was based on permitting a boy under the age of 16 to enter and remain in her establishment.

The conviction and sentence was sustained by the court of appeals and now goes to the state's highest court for determination as to whether a "tavern" at which food and intoxicants are sold is in reality a "restaurant" or a "saloon," the contention being that since the establishment is a "restaurant" it cannot be a "dram shop or saloon" as charged.

It might also be contended, in the interest of accurate terminology, that, since it was quite generally agreed the "saloon" was not to return with the re-legalization of liquor-selling, that none of the present dispensaries of intoxicants can be saloons, dram shops, booze joints—or other of the erstwhile opprobrious designations—but that all such are entitled to bear the one-time respected name of "restaurant", from which no child could be properly excluded.

The close linking of "restaurants" with the sale of intoxicants, under present handling of the liquor business in Ohio, has served to place an unjust stigma on legitimate restaurants, dependent on revenues from the sale of food. This is one of the things that will require early changing by the legislature or through revision of regulations by the state liquor board.

The Richland county case now going to the state supreme court may aid in clarifying the puzzling question of "when is a restaurant not a restaurant?"

Auto Prices and Profits.

THE $15 reduction in price of one automobile amounts to one-third of the recent price increase for the same car. It is expected to be followed soon by similar reductions for other cars in the low-priced field.

Wall Street, bewildered by its own downward price movement, is said to regard this as the "wisest sort of move at this time." When prices were raised recently for all automobiles, consumers resisted. Although the new prices do not cover the added money value of the new cars, second thoughts in the industry have led to the conclusion that only volume of distribution will insure profitable operation. The more cars they sell, the more they can make. The more they make, the more the cost per car can be cut down.

Comfort and Charm.

A YOUNG WOMAN who is much sought after as a speaker and consultant on charm, and who has written a popular book on the subject, has more plain good sense than magic in her formula.

"The charm I have dealt with," she explains, "does not mean following any set of rules, but being controlled by a sense of fitness, having an elasticity that equips us to meet any situation."

In charm, it appears, as in so many other matters, individuals often can't see the woods for the trees. Thus she has had people come to her with such problems as the correct position of their eyes when talking to others.

"It is pathetic," she says, "that they should need such minute guidance. If they had the proper mental approach, they would be comfortable and it would never occur to them to worry about their eyes."

That is the trouble with too much reliance on rules. They set the book-taught charmer to thinking about the correct positions of eyes and hands, the correct gestures for any given conversation, and so on, with the result that charm doesn't have a ghost of a chance and everybody concerned is completely uncomfortable.

Word comes that five girls in a western state used relief money to pay for permanents—which, in a way, explains permanent relief.

A Detroit letter writer urges that criminals be given the rope—which is just what they seem to have been given too much of.

Strategic Retreat Brings New 'Breathing Spell'

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—How long the present "breathing spell" in the reform battle of the administration against business is going to last is one of the most important questions in Washington. Few observers believe that it is anything more than a strategic retreat. Most of them believe that the offensive will be renewed, with fresh vigor, when the present business recession turns, as every one hopes it soon will, into renewed prosperity.

Some of the Capitol Hill leaders predict, however, that even if business should blossom like the rose next summer the drive toward "planned economy" will not be resumed until after the election next November. A few even predict that it will not be resumed in full force until after the presidential election, though this seems less probable. Such a long delay is not compatible with the President Roosevelt's normal mental processes.

Had it not been for the business recession there would have been a battle between congress and the president almost as bitter, and probably as significant, as that over enlarging the supreme court last winter. Congress was all set for revamping of the undistributed earnings tax, and the capital gains tax, long before the business men back in the districts and states began to blame the whole recession on governmental interference with business management and investment trends. The business recession simply strengthened this determination.

* * *

BUT it also determined the president to yield, at least in part, and to lay more emphasis on balancing the budget. This in turn promises less government competition with private business, particularly in the electric industry.

The same battle will be fought, but the battleground will be different. The president has retreated to a stronger position. Son James and Charley West, Tommy Corcoran and Charley Michelson, will be found button-holing senators and representatives to prevent modification from going too far, rather than to prevent any modification at all.

And there may be no fight whatever to force immediate power projects into the seven T. V. A.'s. In fact Senator George W. Norris is already giving out interviews that his understanding with the president on that subject seems to be very different from what the president now thinks it is.

As another result of this "breathing spell" the president and Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, seem to be further apart than they have been at any time since Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House.

La Follette has never been afraid of taxes—nor of admitting frankly that more must be laid on the small income group. He has consistently scorned the New Deal intimation that the rich could be made to pay for New Deal spending. So he wants to boost the rates on small incomes and lower the exemptions as well. Moreover, he wants the government to go right on with spending—increase it until every available "employable" can be put on the government payroll.

* * *

STRATEGICALLY, this puts the president in between the two extremes, an extremely enviable political position. It may make very much harder the task of the southern conservatives, who hope to win party control, nominate a conservative, and really "turn to the right" in the next national platform.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Lusty Growth.

I LIKE ZINNIAS. In case you're not a garden hound, zinnias are flowers. Lusty, coarse flowers with strong roots and a few vigorous leaves. There is nothing fancy about zinnias—nothing exotic or mysterious. But there is a sturdy simplicity that asks no odds of any other flowers—and a great, joyous outpouring of color.

No other flower on earth has such an ecstasy of color. I am looking at some of them out of my cabin window as I write—a riotous tangle in a spaded bit of clearing, flaming against the moss-grown, gray rocks, the wine-dark shadows of the forest. Straight blue-green stalks, thick heads of bloom . . . salmon and crimson, apricot, violet and magenta, rose, copper and burnt orange, bursting from the rich black soil, tumbling over the stone walls, spilling across the path in their eager abundance.

I look. I drink in their color. I fill myself with their fierce virility. And a rush of gladness sweeps through me. Hot, animal pleasure. They are as compelling as that . . . as satisfying. Like hunger and thirst . . . strong natural laughter and love . . . good food, a crackling fire, a gypsy song—

Yes, I like zinnias. They are harsh, but it is a healthy harshness. Like cleanness and honesty—like all natural things which are still unperverted. They have no fragrance, but there is a good pungency to them. It reminds me of the soap we used to make—stout, home-made yellow soap, not alluring, but deeply cleansing.

I like the habits of zinnias, too—their outdoor personality. You cannot imagine them in swank hotel lobbies or at select bridge tables (puffy, pallid faces festering with greed) or in those gilded rat-holes where Silken Susies and their pick-me-ups get soused.

Zinnias have no place in all that. They belong in good earth, hot sunshine, clean wind. If they were people, they would live in cabins and plain, friendly homes. They would sit around plain board tables scrubbed white or covered with red-checkered cloth. They would eat fried mush, salt pork and country gravy . . . boiled beef, with home-grown roots and mashed dried peas piled about it . . . mountain trout . . . wild rabbit . . . jerkie. They would sleep between rough, gray blankets with the pine branches spreading in a black net above their camp fire—and, with the dawn, see one great star. Simply, stoutly—that is how zinnias live. That is the only life they understand. There are no social subtleties about zinnias . . . no sly, side-winking jokes . . . no imported cultures or neurotic complexes. They are what they are, and you can take them or leave them.

The people I knew as a child were like that. Miners, cowboys, stevedores, sailors, homesteaders with their laughing, deep-breasted women . . . striding down from the mountains with their burros . . . jingling in from the vast ranges on their high, Spanish saddles, their herds bellowing before them in a smother of tawny dust . . . laboring, naked save for breech clouts, in the gloom of the docks, on the decks of South Sea tramp traders . . . blazing trails through the wilderness, with the yammer of the coyotes in their courageous ears and the vision of America in their dauntless eyes—

America—it grew from lustiness like that. Coarse, sturdy growth, honest and uncompromising.

Seeing this virile abundance beneath my window brings it all back to me. The surging abundance of virile life that was once America . . . that once made America. The life that ran naturally, honestly . . . without imported cultures or neurotic complexes. Deep laughter and hot love, good food, a crackling fire and a gypsy song—once that was life in America.

Nowadays we have perfumed cakes instead of home-made yellow soap . . . caviare instead of fried salt pork and country gravy . . . conservatory orchids instead of backyard zinnias. Yet, sometimes I wonder—

As Others See It

The Lucky One.

Merely a Suggestion.

"Fresh blood and a forward-looking program are recognized needs of the G. O. P." Also a pair of those new fog lights, for the party bandwagon. — Detroit News.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

AN UNFAITHFUL NATION: They say, If a man put away his wife, and she go from him, and become another man's, shall he return unto her again? shall not that land be greatly polluted? but thou hast played the harlot with many lovers; yet return again to me, saith the Lord.—Jeremiah 3:1.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

What Will This Session Bring?

TAKE A LONG-RANGE VIEW of the probable accomplishments of this special session of congress:

TAXES: No relief in prospect. If small businesses are relieved of the undistributed profits' tax, their owners will have to bear the burden in another manner—viz., broader personal income taxes. If money is not "found" in corporation profits, it must be found through a broader income tax base. That means "catching" the average man. Next year is election year. Any congressman voting for a broader income tax base would be defeated.

WHY TAXES MUST "BE FOUND:" The relief burden will revert to the federal government. "Home" relief already has failed. People are in dire distress. The situation is acute—and of extreme danger. The federal government may have to "find" and expend on relief this winter one billion dollars that it had not anticipated.

* * *

WAGES, HOURS

WAGES AND HOURS: Little hope for this legislation this session. But the bill may take a far more potent turn if the business recession continues. It may turn out to be an Industrial Administration act, with the government having complete authority over all industrial production, competition, hours and wages. Nothing is so intended at the moment—but the situation can develop suddenly. (The supreme court now may be favorable —6-3—on such legislation).

WHY: Want in the midst of plenty, unbalanced production, unequal conditions because of monopolies, necessity for mass production to get prices down, even if by government subsidy, in order to renew purchasing power to the mass of the population, demand far-reaching measures. (Such are the arguments presented.) This would be a long step toward state (government) capitalism. It may not eventuate. Yet it may—if not now, eventually.

* * *

CROP CONTROL

ALL-WEATHER CROP CONTROL PROGAM: A sharp fight is due over this. Many old-liners desire subsidies without control. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is sure that this would bankrupt the government. His plan of "ever-normal" granary, whereby the government would "regulate" production would guarantee a degree of stability and also provide for the lean years. He may win out.

WHY: Unless the secretary of agriculture gets some sort of control, farm prices will sink to heartrending lows. And basically, the United States is an agricultural country. If the farmer suffers, the entire nation is in like distress. Incidentally, Secretary Wallace is eager to do such a successful job on the "ever-normal" granary as to be the "logical" man for the Democratic nomination for president.

* * *

REORGANIZATION

REORGANIZATION OF EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS: Some of this may go through. If the government were a private corporation, the president's bill (prepared by non-partisan experts) would go through immediately. Congress does not like it, for it takes away many jobs.

NATIONAL PLANNING FOR BETTER USE OF NATIONAL RESOURCES: Doubtful. Again, non-partisans say it is excellent. But large vested interests see in it "new invasions of business"—particularly electric power — and there is a tremendous lobby against it.

* * *

HOUSING

AID TO PRIVATE HOUSING: Even a congress can't lead a horse to water when the horse doesn't believe some hay will follow the water. House development, except by outright government construction, will come only when people can afford to pay the cost and hold on to the houses after they have them. The basic economic questions will have to be settled first.

* * *

NEUTRALITY

NEUTRALITY LAW: There will be a great deal of fussing over the "inadequacy" of this. Efforts will be made to keep the United States out of foreign conferences. But the necessity for a world economic conference or a sudden flare-up of Fascism on a large Latin American front may sweep aside all the talk in congress, no matter how wise it may be.

* * *

ANTI-LYNCH

ANTI-LYNCH LAW: Northern Democrats may insist on this—and split the party. Northern Democrats may not be able to carry their bailiwicks in the next elections if they do not. The Republicans made strong gains in recent municipal elections. Many congressmen will vote for the measure as a matter of conscience; to others, it will be a political matter.

* * *

LA FOLLETTE

CIVIL LIBERTIES COMMITTEE: The most important matters off the floor of congress will develop in Senator Robert M. La Follette's civil liberties' committee hearings. A sensation over black-listing of thousands of steel strikers and their plight is scheduled.

(Incidentally, organized labor may find a common meeting ground by supporting Senator La Follette for president in 1940. What ticket? Who knows now?)

Timely Editorial

Glattke Commended.

Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of the Mansfield Reformatory, is back home to make a speech to the Toledo Post of the American Legion.

This affords us an occasion for calling attention to the outstanding success with which the former Toledo high school coach and teacher is credited.

Since Governor Davey appointed Mr. Glattke to Mansfield, that institution has been signally free from criticism and has drawn much expert praise as a place where rehabilitation of the individual is making notable progress.

Without special training other than a good general education and a successful teaching experience, Mr. Glattke has applied himself to the job conscientiously and intelligently to the end that the Mansfield institution has become a school for good citizenship rather than a school for crime.—Toledo News-Bee.

Health Advice

By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

Laryngitis Is Common Ailment.

"SPEAKER'S VOICE," or "preacher's sore throat" is a common affliction of persons who subject their throats to the prolonged irritation which comes from too much speaking. It is frequently met among stump speakers, campaigners, ministers, actors and others who must use their voices over long periods of time. I have had experience of my own when it was necessary to speak over the radio several times a day and do a lot of platform talking besides.

The doctors call this condition laryngitis. As its name indicates, it is an inflammation of the larynx or vocal box. That part of the anatomy may become congested or inflamed from excessive use, following exposure to cold and infection.

Its Location.

The larynx is located at the top of the "trachea," the "wind pipe." It lies just below the root of the tongue. It is a box-like structure, and across it are stretched the vocal cords, the vibrations of which produce sounds.

It will be seen that when these cords are congested or inflamed, the normal mechanism of the voice is altered. This leads to huskiness of voice, hoarseness or actual inability to utter a sound. Continued use of the throat after the trouble begins may lead to prolonged impairment of the voice. As a rule, however, laryngitis is temporary in its nature.

There may be no pain at all. But I have seen some cases of laryngitis which are so painful as actually to require the administration of an opiate. This more commonly occurs when an individual has become infected, perhaps after a severe cold.

Pharyngitis Painful.

In addition to laryngitis, there may be an accompanying inflammation of the pharynx, the adjacent part of the throat. This is what the doctors call "pharyngitis," and a condition not to be confused with laryngitis. Pharyngitis is painful, a form of sore throat. It is a common complication of a cold. The parts feel raw and scraped and usually fever is present.

Laryngitis is best treated by complete rest of the voice, as well as rest of the body. Applications of ice or cold water to the throat and the drinking of copious amounts of water will help to reduce the swelling and congestion. It is best to see that the air of the room is moist, and certainly excessively dry air must be avoided.

In severe cases of laryngitis the use of an inhalator is beneficial. The inhalation of compound tincture of benzoin hasteus recovery and restores the speech. If fever is present, the family doctor should be consulted.

Grab-Bag

2. What was the Bastille?
3. What does it mean "to be held incommunicado"?

Hints on Etiquette.

In planning a theater or opera party it is wise to invite an equal number of men and women.

Words of Wisdom.

Conscience, in most men, is but the anticipation of the opinions of others.—Taylor.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Neville Chamberlain, a member of the Conservative party.
2. A French fortress in Paris which served as a political prison before the Revolution of 1789.
3. To be held prisoner without privilege of communicating with persons outside the jail or prison.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Bequest.

Departing, I would leave you this
When I am here no more—
The dreams that lifted me above
This earth to sky's bright door.

This I would give you, too, Beloved.
For this I count life's best—
Capacity for happiness
In simple pleasures' quest.

A joy deep down in dawn's high note,
And in the silvery sheen
Of river's wealth, enjoyment of
World's charm of peaceful green.

What I bequeath you of my store
Of pennies I put by
I count as nothing when compared
With beauty pulsing high.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THEODORE DREISER seems determined to become an utter recluse from the world. Never a mixer with his fellows, he has for the past 19 years been slowly severing the remaining ties. Only a few established friends see him. And now and then he darts into a midnight movie.

When he bought an elaborate off-the-main-highway estate deep in the Mt. Kisco hills a few years ago, he bulwarked his increasing isolation. To a pretentious fireside he invited only a select group. His apartment at the uptown Ansonia was closed.

Now Dreiser has deserted Mt. Kisco for what is known as "a scientific monastery" near Cold Springs Harbor, L. I. He is living in a mere shack with bare floor, no pictures on the wall and not any of the modern conveniences, such as telephone and radio.

Other scientists live there for $2 a week. Dreiser has found their companionship stimulating and believes the world of science is the only one wholesome and clean. He is not alone in his about-face and return to the simplicities. Many artists and writers are burrowing back.

No one is more interesting than Dreiser from the sidelines when defending a cause. It's really an act. He is the picture of sullen rage, rocking to and fro and folding and refolding his handkerchief. Now and then he lashes out like a viper's hiss, his gofunny eye fairly glinting rage. No one I have known seems to express such bitterness toward those he thinks have exploited the weak. His early brushes with poverty still rankle, and yet many of us have had the same disillusionments without his unhappy reaction.

The paying teller in a large bank tells me the average person changes his signature several times before reaching 50, but after that it usually remains as is. Yet there always remain distinguishing lines recognizable to the expert. James J. Walker is an accomplished Jimmy the Penman. His chirography suggests a steel engraving. The most difficult to decipher is that of Noel Coward's loop the loop. The most attractive feminine handwriting is that taught and practised by the fashionable boarding schools near Philadelphia. Old time telegraph operators had a swing that was graceful, and, of course, made for swift writing. Kathleen Norris has mastered a beautiful penmanship, something unusual for those to whom writing is a trade.

During a stretch of newspapering in Dayton, O., years ago, I was, for economic reasons, billeted with a dounish fellow in the dingy room of an equally dingy boarding house on the wrong end of town. Our single light was a gas jet and often I would awaken to see him bending over, writing. He always professed to be making out reports as a salesman. One morning at daybreak there was a commanding knock at the door. I opened it for two derbied gentlemen who I happened to know at police headquarters. They were looking for my room-mate who was sound asleep. He was a forger, with four convictions, yet only 26 years of age. Evidently forgery is a difficult habit to shake. In the past year the same fellow was emblazoned in the New York newspapers for bouncing rubber checks around a fashionable section of Boston, where he had been quite a one.

Thingumbobs: Edgar Wallace, the mystery story writer, was extremely sensitive about a stone deafness . . . Lady Astor is a Donald Duck enthusiast . . . Nijinsky, the famous dancer, mind gone, sits day after day at the window of a Swiss sanitarium, rocking a rag doll . . . He does not even recognize his wife. . . . A movement grows to make organized baseball give Babe Ruth a managerial chance or those fostering it will deny their attendance . . . Henry Mencken and George Jean Nathan have a cocktail together now and then, but with formality . . . The buck Ward Morehouse killed in an Idaho hunt hangs at "No. 21."

Contributed:
A gent in a bright yellow shirt
And a necktie so purple it hurt;
So said I: "Why, Migawd!
It is certainly Odd."
He showed his green socks and said "Cert."

That's right old boy. Try to look innocent. Pretend you don't know what it's all about. Let on like you don't know how you ever landed here. Don't stall now, you know what that cop meant. After all, that antiquated gas burner should have been abandoned as junk years ago. Yes indeed, the officer knew what he was talking about.

Name Conservation Committees In Each Township; Group Meets Saturday.

Final details of the county program will be completed Saturday at an all-day meeting at the courthouse where Dwight Wise, of Fremont, district field man; G. L. Taylor, county chairman, and County Agent George B. Ganyard will outline the conservation plan to the township committeemen.

Committeemen in the three final townships, announced today by County Chairman Taylor are:

Permits Study of Organs While At 'Work' In Body

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— A microscope which enables physicians to study "motion pictures" of vital organs as they function has been given medical science. It unfolds hitherto hidden secret of life.

The new "fluorescent" instrument, developed by Dr. Edward Singer, of Cornell university, was given a "preview" at the New York Academy of Medicine. It was hailed by those attending as a tool which would give a better understanding of organic functions both normal and abnormal. Its greatest immediate worth, observers agreed, would be in the diagnosis and treatment of disease.

The microscope utilizes the fluorescence of certain substances to make visible the living organ in action, a possibility long dreamed of by scientists. Heretofore physicians could study organs only after they had been removed and were "dead."

With Singer's instruments, organs within the body are visible after being injected with a weak solution of harmless florescence fluid.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Book of the Week

High Water by Phil Strong 80 pp, Dodd Mead & Co. $2.

One of the fine new books that boys from 7 to 10 and up would enjoy is "High Water." Not only because of its humor, but also because it is so typical of America. How often have we heard the two words, "High Water" in the last ten or twelve months? Just so did the little burro hear it and understand its meaning.

The story is laid along the banks of a Mid-western river. It is a friendly, harmless stream until suddenly it becomes wild and dangerous. Nobody is drowned in the story but everyone is at his wits end, trying to save himself and his possessions.

Everybody wants to be saved but Mexico, the donkey. He doesn't understand, and until he does, it takes some pulling and coaxing and tugging. At least he refuses to go into a boat. But the hired man's powers of concentration finally beat Mexico's and he moves.

Mexico, the donkey, learned what "High Water" meant and so will every little reader. The latter will enjoy it so much that they will spell their insistence in capitals too.

Baby Island by Carol Ryrie Brink-MacMillan Co, 122 pp $2.

The author of one of the Newberry Metal books writes one now that will delight any little girl. Especially if that little girl loves to play with dolls, or better still, take care of the neighbor's babies.

For in this entertaining story, there are two little girls who love to take care of babies. Their only regret is when they have to return them back to their homes. These same little girls happen to be on a steamer from San Francisco to Australia when they are ship-wrecked. And curiously enough, the four babies on the ship happen to be put in the life boat with the girls.

In true story fashion, they land on an island with the babies and have a glorious time. How they get their food and take care of their babies provides a lively story for any little girl.

The girls enjoy their new task so much that they are sorry when a ship comes to pick them up. It also brings the good-news that their ship wasn't ship-wrecked after all and the parents of the babies are awaiting their safe return.

Any little girl will know deep down in her heart that this story could hardly happen, but all little girls will wish it could.

THEATER

IF YOU like those wierdly nutty pictures like "My Man Godfrey" and "Double Wedding," you'll probably like the new Carole Lombard-Fred MacMurray flicker, "True Confession" when it's released. It's about a wife who was a born liar, and when she accidently happened onto the body of a murdered man, it presented such a swell opportunity to lie, that she made five confessions—each better than the one before it. Her husband, a young attorney, rushed to her defense and she thought it would give him some good publicity if he could defend her in court—so she made even a better confession. When he does, and wins an acquittal, she's afraid to tell him the truth. "True Confession," ready for release, has John Barrymore, Una Merkel, Porter Hall, Edgar Kennedy and Lynne Overman in the cast.

* * *

Life of the Party.

Through an error it was incorrectly stated here yesterday that "The Perfect Specimen" with Joan Blondell and Errol Flynn would be the attraction at the Ohio the last half of the week. Instead the picture is booked for a Saturday night midnight show and the first three days of next week. Starting today that theater offers "The Life of The Party" with a cast of comics and singers that is star-studded. Gene Raymond and Harriet Hilliard of the husky voice are the romanticists against a background of such comics as Joe Penner, Parkyakarkus, Victor Moore and Helen Broderick. It starts out with a Cinderella theme—a society lad trying to find a lady whose dainty foot must fit into the slipper he has found. Girls and songs add to the entertainment.

* * *

Alcatraz Prison.

Alcatraz prison, the escape proof institution in San Francisco Bay, is the locale for much of the action in the picture, "Alcatraz Island," which the Madison offers the last two days of the week. Although built on headlines, the story departs from facts far enough to make a prisoner something of a hero for picture purposes. John Litel plays the prisoner, with Mary Maguire as his daughter. The inside of the prison and the lives of the men there have been used by Warner Brothers in dramatic effect. Mary Maguire is the girl who used to be known as the "Mary Pickford of Australia," and is making a bid for fame in American movies.

Behind the Scenes.

A story of Hollywood of a star of silent pictures who loses out when the talkies arrive, and who stages a comeback in a novel manner is told in "It Happened In Hollywood," the Majestic feature for Friday and Saturday. Richard Dix and Fay Wray head the cast. A unique feature is a party given for a small crippled boy, to which are invited the doubles of all the famous stars in cinemaland. In the end the former star triumphs over his difficulties. Tom Tyler, Western picture player, comes to the Majestic in "Cheyenne Rides Again," as the second feature on the week-end bill.

Merry Lunacicies.

Based on the situation of two partners in a pill manufacturing concern staging a wrestling match to determine who shall be in authority, with the loser to be valet to the winner, the Wheeler and Woolsey comedy, "On Again Off Again," will be offered at the Ritz tomorrow and Saturday. These mad funsters bring their latest lunacicies to the screen with Patricia Wilder and Marjorie Lord as the recipient of their affections. Also offered for the last bill of the week is Gene Autry in a singing Western, "Get Along Little Dogies."

Federal Agents Report Arrests Expected to Halt Toledo-Detroit Traffic.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Government attorneys have reported that a 21-year-old woman's complaint had led to the crushing of a white slave ring operating between Detroit and Toledo, O.

The complainant and another woman, charged with violating the Mann act, were held in county jail. Three men were free under bond awaiting trial on federal grand jury indictments. Another man and woman still were being sought by agents of the bureau of identification.

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Louis Hopping said two couples were arrested on Oct. 22 in a raid on an apartment house here. Reportedly married, their names were given as Mr. and Mrs. Louis Leiber and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bauman. Another couple, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Thornburg, reportedly are held in St. Louis, Mo., for removal to Detroit for arraignment on federal indictments.

Leiber and Bauman were released by U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd under bonds of $3,000 and $3,500 respectively. They are charged, Hopping said, with bringing the women they described as their wives into the state illegally.

Thornburg and a fugitive whose name was not released reportedly are under indictment for bringing the women who made the first complaint into Detroit from Toledo.

AWARDED JOB

Mansfielder Gets Contract For New Drainage Ditch.

On the only bid submitted, Roger J. Au, Mansfield contractor, today had been awarded a contract for the construction of a drainage ditch in the Belmont addition, just off West Fourth street.

The contract, awarded by county commissioners, is for $440, including labor and materials for the improvement. The estimated cost of the project was set at $452, the commissioners said.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XVIII

Jewell flushed. He looked discomforted, yet stubborn. He had this girl where he wanted her. He would keep her there as long as possible before turning her over to the district attorney.

"It is not my business to tell you what we have," he said pleasantly.

"Do as you please, Mr. Jewell. You are out for your job, and I mustn't try to stop you. You didn't know my father, or you'd understand. He always believed in doing his own job and not hampering others. You've seen all you can see, Mr. Jewell. Is there anything else?"

Her hands waved vaguely at the group of men, now waiting silently for orders.

"You boys go on back to headquarters and begin making complete reports. I wish to investigate Miss Jepson further. If you think I need a chaperon, leave some one in the patrol wagon to take me back. That'll get you a bit more sleep."

One of the men grinned. The patrol wagon meant an expected arrest. The "chaperon" meant help at hand in time of trouble. The dismissal of the others was not pure generosity, although they all counted Jewell a "good guy." He did not want those reports to pass beyond his own hands in case something he learned further turned out to be phony.

Jewell turned to her, his eyes sad rather than stern. "I've no business to be a policeman," he began surprisingly.

"No; why?" It was the only thing Elna could think of to say.

His pipe was puffing furiously now. "You've often heard it said that a policeman's head is in his feet. That's where it ought to be. I ought to say, 'Come on, we know all about it—no monkey business, baby,' and swing you on the shoulder just hard enough so you couldn't show the scar to your lawyer when you get one."

His eyes were as fierce as the coals in his pipe now.

"Why don't you?"

"Not because you're pretty," Jewell answered more calmly. "I've seen plenty of pretty girls with a sawed-off shotgun in their hands. But you did the commonest sort of 'perfect murder,' disguising it as an accident, and yet you are not mean. You haven't done or said a mean thing. Maybe you are trying to shield some one we haven't guessed."

* * *

"I give my word of honor that I am not shielding any one from murder." The quietness of Elna's voice brought conviction. This time she was speaking utter truth.

"Then you did it," Jewell said. "It is not business to give you this advice, but if you would confess and produce an adequate motive, you'd get more sympathy all around. The jury would think up a dozen reasons why they might have done the same thing in the same circumstances. They'd be for you. I'm not soft-soaping. You'd better come across."

"But I've answered all your questions—you cannot possibly have any idea that the death of Mrs. Ainsworth was anything but an accidental fall. I've answered everything."

"I regret to say that you answered everything because you took time to think up beforehand the answers to everything you thought would be asked."

"There is nothing more," Elna said with calm dignity. But her face turned white. What could she have done or said that would involve Roger? For herself, she was startled, but without fear. She knew that she had not killed Holly.

Jewell turned to her sternly. "When you are tried you will learn all the testimony against you — which you have overlooked. Testimony gathered here, in person, with whatever else the district attorney has picked up in the meantime, pitted, if you were alone, as you say you were, against your own mere word."

"Oh!" The exclamation was scarcely more than a softly drawn sign. Roger would not let that happen. He would come to her long before that. Roger was a brilliant lawyer.

Jewell misunderstood the sigh.

"The first days of investigation will be the hardest," he said, still in that hard, impersonal voice. "They will spring at you a lot of information you did not guess we knew. They will catch you in lies on unimportant points, and then hurl them back at you. Finally you will be so tired that you can no longer think of quick answers consistent with former answers. Less sensitive women than you have broken down and confessed."

"I am not guilty. I have no motive. Therefore—no, I don't believe in your secret evidence, either," Elna said.

"I am forced to disbelieve you. I can't help it. And yet, even if you are a murderess, you're a good girl. It may sound funny, but that's the way it is."

"I don't think it's funny. It's a very great compliment." Elna smiled at him. "All the same, I don't see how the fact that a policeman thinks I'm a murderess but a nice girl—"

"I said, 'Good girl'," Jewell corrected her glumly.

"Good girl." Elna bowed. "I see the difference. Anyway, I don't see how it changes anything for me, except in appreciation of what you've said."

"No, it won't change much. I'll testify against you on the facts."

"I know that—it's your duty, and the more so since you believe it. But I do wish I knew what these mysterious, unexpected facts are."

"That's the point," Jewell answered. "I'm going quite outside my duty—against it—but I'm going to tell you. I'll justify myself that I'm doing it in a last hope of getting you to confess and plead guilty in order to save a long trial, but that isn't the truth. It's wrong, but I'm going to tell you. If you answer these points convincingly, my attitude may change."

* * *

Leaning back in her chair, alert eyes deliberately lazy, her long cigaret holder dangling from her hand, Elna waited.

"In the first place," he said, "you did not call the police immediately. No doctor can estimate the hour of the death exactly, but any doctor can tell the difference between ten minutes and two hours. What were you doing in those two hours?"

The hour with Roger, the time in arrangement of the room. No, she could not tell that.

"I have heard that some bodies stiffen much more quickly than others. That is the only explanation I can give."

Jewell nodded without reply. "You told frankly that you had moved the body. You suggested it would ruin any evidence drawn from the blood trajectories. Of course investigation would show that the body had been moved. It is possible that you moved it for that purpose—as a sort of advance defense."

"And it might be a true defense—in fact it was." Elna answered. "I was so startled by the fall that I ran to her at once. There was no other motive, since she fell from the spot I indicated."

"There are fingerprints on your poker," Jewell continued.

"Naturally, it is my poker. I use it constantly." Elna was on firmer ground. This was the plan mapped out for her by Roger.

"You dropped your handkerchief in the room. One of my men picked it up. It showed both blood and smut on it. I suggest that you intended to wipe off both fingerprints and blood from the poker—but did not reach far enough. There was blood on the lower part of the poker."

Elna had intended to wipe off Riger's fingerprints—she had not thought of the blood. "I picked up the poker. I did not know there was blood on the lower part. I used it for the fire afterwards."

"You still insist that you immediately called the police?" Jewell asked.

"Yes, as quickly as I could," Elna answered promptly.

"Then why are there washed-out bloodstains on your dress?" Jewell pounced.

"Because I naturally rushed to Mrs. Ainsworth as soon as she had fallen. Any one would do that. And no one—no woman at least—could bear to go about with all that blood on her."

"Then you did not call the police immediately." The sentence was a statement, not a question.

"That," said Elna, "is sheer quibbling. What do you mean by 'immediately'? Why, even the law books say that premeditation may be as swift as the passage of thought through the brain, when nobody has the slightest knowledge of the relation of time to thought."

"Hm." Odd. Jewell thought, that a young girl should launch forth on the legal definition of premeditation.

"I have spoken of the poker and the handkerchief," Jewell said. "The interval between Mrs. Ainsworth's death and your actions still remains to be accounted for. How did the water get on your bloodstained dress unless you were making an unsuccessful attempt to wash the signs of Mrs. Ainsworth's death from your dress and gave up the attempt as useless? You know you had not too much time."

* * *

Roger had told her to wash up everything. She had found the broken glass. She could not answer.

"I cannot answer that—I imagine there are always things one cannot answer," she replied.

"Blood is not so easily removed," Jewell replied. "Traces of it were found on the dishcloth. That means that the dishcloth was washed out, just about the time you tried to wash out your dress. There was another point. A fresh wet dishcloth was hung on the wall later. One of the cups was still damp. I accidentally touched the percolator and found it hot. I motioned one of my men to take it away. There was fresh coffee there.

"You, who rushed to call the police, had taken time to make coffee and wash your dishes. You had taken time to wash this or other dishes with blood upon them, and had attempted to cleanse your skirt. Strangest of all, you whose friend lay dead on the floor, took time to douche your hair with cologne.

"I did stop for coffee. I did stop for cologne." Elna's voice was stern as her father's had been. She knew at that moment that there was no explanation for the bloody dishcloth, for the percolator, for the splashed dress and poker.

"I'm sorry." She held out her hand to Jewell. "I know you wanted to find me innocent. I wanted it, too, but your evidence is too much for both of us. You've got to do all you can against me, but I'll never forget that you thought me a good girl."

"I believe you are guilty," Jewell said. "I believe you have lied like hell. But you're a good girl, somehow, for all that."

"And you're not a very good policeman, or you'd have been swearing and yelling, 'Come clean!' and all that," Elna smiled. For the first time she identified the type of his face—the long, dark Irish face, self-torturing, inclined to martyrdom, taking duty with deep seriousness. He made a good detective, because of intelligence and quickness of observation, sometimes with a liveliness of perception that amounted to psychological insight.

Jewell seemed not to have heard Elna's remark.

"The prosecution will evolve the idea that you hit Mrs. Ainsworth over the head with the poker, then pounded her against the corner of the table in order to make that seem the cause of death, then moved the body so that the bumps and blood marks would be confusing," he said his head bowed in his hands.

"Do you believe that?" Elna asked, startled.

"It isn't what I believe that counts. They'll make it darned plausible."

"It is not true." Elna spoke quietly.

To her surprise, Jewell lifted his head, his dark eyes shining. "Thank God, I'm glad. I shouldn't have liked that." Elna reflected that he had an uncanny recognition when she was lying and when she was telling the truth. "Frankly, I hoped that when the hurly-burly of the first investigation was over, you would convince me completely of your innocence. In that case, I should refuse to arrest you, no matter what my men brought in—and probably have lost my job for it. I'd have been sure of the truth and the facts, and I'd have stood up for them."

KEY POINT IN NANKING DRIVE HELD BY JAPS

Portion of Walled City of Kashing Captured; Chinese Hold In Other Sectors.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— Japanese army spokesmen announced tonight that Japanese troops driving to break through China's "Hindenburg" line between Shanghai and Nanking had captured one gate of the walled city of Kashing, southern keystone of the line.

Both Chinese and Japanese reported heavy fighting in the area around Kashing, 60 miles southwest of Shanghai and 30 miles south of Soochow, main point of Chinese defenses.

Chinese told of a spirited engagement at Seven Star bridge, four miles northeast of Kashing. Japanese said they were unable to state officially that their forces had captured the city.

Evacuation Hurried.

News of the Japanese push against the southern wing of the defenses stretching from the Yangtze river south to Hangchow Bay came a few hours after an unofficial government warning spurred mass migration of civilians from Nanking.

For 24 hours, Chinese had held their own along the length of the defenses to which they retreated after Shanghai fell into Japanese hands No. 9.

Although the Japanese received reinforcements for the new onslaught today, their only advance apparently was on the southern front. They were unable to push forward toward Soochow, along the Shanghai-Nanking railroad. Fighting desperately, Chinese stood their ground between the Cheni and waiting stations.

The Japanese explained that Chinese lines from Soochow north to the Yangtze were protected by a network of creeks and canals and defended by 120,000 troops under the command of Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, leader of Kwangsi Province forces and once a bitter foe of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Nanking technically was still the seat of government, but Chinese senior officials who remained were ready to leave on short notice. The fleeing civilian population almost engulfed columns of soldiers moving in the opposite direction—to the front.

The government cautined all civilians whose presence was not necessary for defense or public service to leave Nanking. No definite arrangements had been made for evacuation of United States citizens, but gunboats were on hand to move them.

FACE 2 THREATS OF INCREASE IN U. S. TAX LEVIES

Small Taxpayer to Be Hit If Harrison Carries Out Plan For New Program.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The small taxpayer faced two threats of additional taxes today if new revenue is needed to balance the budget.

A broader income tax base and a sales tax on manufacturers were suggested by Sen. Pat Harrison, D., Miss., chairman of the senate finance committee which handles all tax legislation in the upper chamer. He said he was opposed to additional taxes but saw no alternative to these if tentative plans to provide tax savings for business men are adopted.

Harrison made his suggestion after conferring with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Undersecretary Roswell Magill, who has been working with the subcommittee.

Seen as Threat.

Political Washington was inclined to regard Harrison's suggestion of a sales tax as a threat to the treasury for drastic economy rather than as an actual menace to the taxpayer. This belief was held partly because Harrison failed to mention one potentially rich and hitherto untouched source of revenue—taxes on estimated $56,000,000,000 (B) of tax exempt securities.

Chairman Fred M. Vinson's house ways and means tax subcommittee has considered taxation on exempted securities as a possible method of compensating for the $93,800,000 a year of tax savings already budgeted tentatively for business. No action has been taken, however.

Harrison was not the first congressman to propose a broader base for income taxes. Sen. Robert M. La Follette, P., Wis., has advocated such a move for some time. He contends that aside from providing additional revenue it also would spread the cost of government among more of its beneficiaries.

LOVE AND LIVERWURST COMBINE IN $250,000 ALIENATION SUIT

NEW YORK—(UP)—A jury decides today whether Charles A. Stiff should collect $250,000 because his wife quit putting liverwurst in his lunch box or whether his whole alienation of affections suit is just a lot of baloney.

Stiff is suing Oscar Douglas, jr., chain store executive, alleging that he stole Mrs. Stiff's love and made her so indifferent that she began substituting a cold potato and egg salad for luscious liverwurst when she fixed his lunch box.

A baggage master for the New York Central railroad, Stiff testified he had suspected for some time that his wife's affection for him was waning, but was sure of it when he opened his lunch box one day and looked in vain for liverwurst, his favorite meat. Yesterday Mrs. Stiff told her side of the story. She said Stiff became a "big bully" after he found there was no more liverwurst and failed to confine his smashing to baggage. Specifically, she said, he committed the following acts:

"1. He threw me down a flight of 13 stairs and then ran into the kitchen and got a tea kettle and poured scalding water on my back.

"2. He gave me 20 cents and told me to go on a big shopping tour.

"3. He hid behind doors and made passes at me with his fists.

"4. He kept a good hard hammer under his pillow and was all time threatening my life.

"5. He talked to himself, mumbling some of the awfullest things you ever heard."

Stiff's lawyer made much of the fact that someone gave Mrs. Stiff several pairs of pink pajamas and suggested that perhaps the donor was Douglas. Mrs. Stiff tried to dispose of that line of testimony by saying chin in air:

"I've worn silk nighties ever since I can remember."

ASK KELLEY TO HUNT CASH FOR PENSION FUND

Finance Committee Wrestles With Problem Revealed at Council Meeting.

The question of what's going to be done about paying the firemen's pensions for this month and December developed into somewhat of a problem today—with council's finance committee trying to figure out where to get the necessary funds.

With a balance of only $584.55 in the pension fund and $835 scheduled to be paid to eight retired firemen and one widow for November, and the same amount due in December, the committee today asked City Auditor Kelley go over the general fund figures to determine whether a transfer of funds could be made.

Karl P. Troll, chairman of the committee, said that the depleted condition of the fund had not been brought formally before council and said he was first aware of the situation when it was mentioned by Kelley during his argument with Mayor Earl A. McFarland over city finances at the meeting Tuesday night.

Special Session Seen.

"We have taken no action yet," Troll said, "but probably will as soon as it can be decided where the money is coming from."

Councilman C. N. Shultz said that as soon as funds could be found for a transfer the committee would ask City Solicitor Herbert H. Schettler to prepare the necessary legislation and would also ask McFarland to call a special council session for the purpose of authorizing the transfer.

"We must pay the pensions," Shultz said, "and I am satisfied that they will be taken care of before the end of the month. On the other hand I feel that we should not spend funds that we do not have," he asserted when questioned about the possibilities of the city asking for an advance draft on the personal tax collections just closed.

He pointed out that the funds were not due until 1938 and "should not be spent before they are received."

STORM HALL TO DEMAND RELIEF

Angry Group Leaves When They Get Promise of Aid.

HOLLAND, O. — (AP) — A sit-down strike in the town hall by 40 angry relief clients ended today when township trustees agreed to issue rations and distribute time cards authorizing relief work on roads.

The demonstrators swarmed into the town hall yesterday to start their sit-down strike when informed by township trustees that relief grocery orders could not be issued because of credit difficulties with wholesale houses.

They dispersed peaceably several hours later when the trustees promised to meet their demands.

BOARD ACTS ON NEW MILK BILL

raw milk to be sold to the consumer.

First steps towards the measure, intended as a health protection, were taken by the board last March when it established a six-months grading period for the producer. This period went into effect on April 1, and continued until Oct. 1, when it was again extended to Jan. 1, 1938.

Rehder Suggests Delay.

Dr. Rehder suggested last night that the board wait until April 1 to invoke the pasteurization order in order to give farmers and the dealer additional time to "fix up." He said the grading period could be extended another three months.

The new requirements will affect the producer as well as the dealer.

"While some dealers who are now selling raw milk will have to install pasteurization equipment, producers will have to meet a higher standard in the production of milk to meet the pasteurization requirements," Rehder said. "This includes sanitation, health of cattle, handling of equipment, milking processes and transportation."

Terms of Ordinance.

Under the new ordinance, grade "B" raw milk would have to be produced to meet the grade "A" pasteurized standard, and grade "C" raw milk would have to be produced to meet grade "B" pasteurized requirements. The existing ordinance provides that only a grade "A" raw product can be sold to the consumer.

Twenty-six petitions opposing the complete pasteurization order and bearing 2,000 signatures were presented to the health board several weeks ago by Mansfield milk dealers.

The petitions were circulated by the raw milk dealers and producers in the city and asked that the existing ordinance calling for a high grade of raw milk be retained.

The Raw Milk Dealers association were represented at the meeting by Neal Robinson and Otto Kline, who protested against the proposed amendment.

Robinson termed the preposal as "unjust," claiming it would jeopardize some of the dealer-producers' source of income. He contended that the pasteurization order would force some of the producers out of the business because they would not be able to install pasteurizing equipment.

Kline told the board that grade "A" raw milk, which the present ordinance called for, was of just a high standard of grade "A" pasteurized milk.

Board members pointed out that it was not only the quality of the milk that had to be considered. They were interested, they said, in safeguarding the health of the public and that the pasteurization process was only another step in that direction.

Co-eds Lead Japanese Boycott

Northwestern university co-eds at Evanston, Ill., are expressing their indignation against the Japanese invasion of China by discarding silk stockings for cotton hose. Here are four of the leaders in the movement which the gals are hoping will spread to other schools. Judging by their appearance, they really aren't handicapped by not clothing their shapely limbs in silk, and, as one co-ed said, "They're a darned sight cheaper."

RESCUED FROM DEATH IN WELL

cided the only means of rescue was to sink a shaft into the side of the well.

Taking turns at digging, the rescuers reached a depth of 15 feet before they broke into the side of the well. Denman was kept informed of the progress of the digging.

As soon as the well was entered, a rope was tossed in to Denman. Another cave-in threatened the trapped farmer as he was being pulled to safety.

Mrs. Denman, describing the experience today, said her husband shouted shortly after the accident happened, that breathing was difficult, so tightly were the stones wedged over his head.

"Later however he said everything was all right," Mrs Denman related. "He had some matches in his pocket and lit some but that only made things worse when he saw how bad his predicament was.

"The men who saved him were wonderful, and his rescue was a miracle. His time hasn't come."

Whether the well, which is four feet wide, will be used again was something Mrs. Denman didn't know today. In the meantime the family is getting water from neighbors.

The Denmans have three children, Mrs. Dorothy Dunn who lives on a nearby farm with her husband, and Martha and Eda Denman, students at Ohio University at Athens.

King George Breaks Tradition for Buckingham Palace.

LONDON —(U.P.)— King George VI has broken a tradition which even his predecessor, the present Duke of Windsor, was unable to do, Buckingham palace attendants agreed today.

For the first time, a "jazz" band played for royal dances, and 1,000 other guests in the palace's white gold ballroom last night at the court ball in honor of King Leopold III of Belgium.

Former King Edward could not do that, palace sources said, because most of his brief reign was the official mourning period for the late King George V.

Southern Killer Spared Through Verdict of Newsmen.

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—Brady Laurence, 22, colored, convicted of the murder of a white man, owed his life today to a group of five newspaper reporters, who, acting upon the request of Governor Clyde R. The five newspaper men spent two hours studying the records in the case, and voted unanimously in favor of sparing his life.

ually remarked "Do you want to catch the kidnapers?"

Oley and Crowley were seized almost 36 hours after they escaped from the Onondaga county penitentiary at Jamesville, N. Y., with the aid of Geary who cut his way through cell bars to truss the prison guard staff of six and escape in a stolen car.

A. E. Gold, assistant U. S. district attorney, who prosecuted the three men along with five others at a trial in Binghamton last August, said he would seek indictments to prosecute the pair on escape charges.

He said there was a maximum penalty of five years for escaping and two years for conspiring to escape. Oley and Geary, both in their thirties, were sentenced to 77 years for the kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, jr., of Albany. Crowley was sentenced to 28 years.

Captain of Detectives Russell W. Humphrey said Whitford said he met the trio early yesterday and was forced to agree to provide them lodging and food at his own rooming house.

The janitor said that the men sent him out frequently for food and liquor and that he drank "frequently" with them "to give them the idea I was a good fellow."

It was on one of these food missions that Whitford decided to "turn them in" to share in the $6,000 reward posted for their capture.

HOSPITAL COST ON INCREASE

Care of Patients Up 40 Cents a Day, Fonkalsrud Tells Board of Directors.

An increase of 40 cents in the daily average cost per patient at the Mansfield General hospital for the month of October was reported by Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, superintendent, at a meeting of the board of directors last night at the hospital.

During the month of October the average daily cost for each patient in the hospital was $6.05, his report showed. This was compared to the September figure of $5.65.

The increase was due to the purchase during the month of new equipment, Dr. Fonkalsrud said.

During October there was an average of 80 patients a day in the hospital, and 45 accident cases were treated. For the same month a year ago 44 similar cases were handled. Forty-two babies were born at the hospital during October, he reported. For the same month in 1936, 38 babies were born at the hospital.

The annual meeting of the board of directors, and election of officers will be held at the January meeting, it was announced. At this time the vacancy on the board caused by the death of Miss Mary Scior, board secretary, will be filled.

Labor Leader Ambushed By Assassins In Minneapolis

KILLED NEAR HOME AFTER PARKING AUTO

Victim Had Been Threatened, Son Tells Police; Writer Provides Clue.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(U.P.)—Patrick J. Corcoran, 45, prominent northwest labor leader, was assassinated late last night near his home in the fashionable Bryn Mawr section of Minneapolis.

The body, one bullet lodged in the head, was found early today by Mrs. W. S. McIntosh, a neighbor.

Police said Corcoran apparently had been ambushed as he was walking to his home after putting his car in the garage at the rear of the house The body, sprawled across a sidewalk at the rear of a home two doors from his own, gave evidence that he had seen his assailants and had sought to escape. His briefcase was found near the body.

Robbery Motive Out.

Police discounted possibility of a robbery motive in the slaying. Corcoran's billfold, containing $400, was undisturbed in his pocket.

Patrick Corcoran, jr., the slain man's son, was quoted by police as saying his father revealed he was slugged last Saturday night and that a shot had been fired at him.

Cedric Adams, columnist for the Minneapolis Star, who carried an item Nov. 9, concerning a tip which came to him forecasting assassination of "a prominent labor leader," supplied police with the source of his information.

Adams was called to police headquarters for questioning concerning his item which read:

"I met a very close friend of mine in the loop last night (Nov. 8.) He's given me scores of items in the past; some of them have been little scoops, too. And he's never been wrong. Here's one he dropped last night—you can take it for what it's worth: A prominent labor leader in Minneapolis will be 'taken for a ride' within two weeks."

Names Union Leader.

Police said Adams told them the information was furnished by theh head of one of the trucking unions, which was involved in the costly and bloody Minneapolis truck strikes of 1932 and 1933.

There were no witnesses to the shooting, police said. Residents of the area where the slaying occurred told police they heard no shots or outcries.

Police believed Corcoran was shot between 9 and 10 p. m. There was no snow under his body and a light snowfall had begun shortly after 10 p. m.

There have been errors in every city improvement ordinance passed in the past 10 years, but it's nothing to worry about, because the errors won't interfere with the legality of the measures. Council Clerk William J. Beer has found that the printed forms read "The hole cost of the improvement," where they should, of course, say "whole." The supply of forms will be exhausted pretty soon, and Beer's going to see to it that the error is corrected when the next batch is ordered from the printer.

The college craze of last fall—wearing of ear-muffs—has now reached the high schools. They're very comfortable these days, too, although the fad was originally started for style purposes rather than comfort. Not only have the high school boys in the city taken up the ear-muffs, but the girls, too, in a few cases. Several have been seen with them at high school games. They come in the school colors, too.

Just to save Charles F. Ackerman a lot of questions we're telling what he and his party brought back from their hunting trip on Tuesday which was sort of a celebration of Mr. Ackerman's 80th birthday anniversary. The party of six bagged nine birds and all the rabbits they wanted to bring home, and the veteran bank president brought down his share.

* * *

The hunting season, now four days old, hasn't caused any serious casualties in Richland county district, but it has taken its toll in sore muscles among the courthouse staff. The chief "victim" is County Treasurer John E. Kolb who admits he almost needed crutches to get down to the office the last two mornings. The damage was done on a trip into "the wilds" west of the city which—and this makes matters worse—netted only one rabbit.

CUT WAR RISK INSURANCE RATE AS EUROPEAN TENSION RELAXES

(By Associated Press)

War risk rates on international maritime commerce—one barometer of war tension—were reduced sharply today on cargoes for the Orient and the western Mediterranean.

The reduction announced in London by British marine insurance underwriters was believed due to three developments:

The transfer of Chinese-Japanese hostilities from the Shanghai area.

An apparent end of "piracy" which developed in the Mediterranean as an outgrowth of the Spanish civil war.

An easier political situation in Europe.

The rates on cargoes to or from Shanghai were cut to $1.25 for each $500 of value, whereas a month ago the rate was $10. The Mediterranean rate was reduced from $1.87 to $1.25.

But in Paris, Senator Henry Berenger, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the French senate, declared Japan had warned of probable retaliation for any arms shipments from French Indo-China to China. His statement appeared in conflict with previous denials of any such warning by other French officials and the Japanese embassy there.

In the Spanish civil conflict, government forces harassed the insurgent troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco with artillery and infantry attacks in the upper and lower Aragon sectors. The government operations apparently were aimed at frustrating a prospective insurgent drive eastward.

PLEADS TODAY IN 2 MURDERS

Airport Executive Won't Take Stand at Arraignment In Killing of Wife, Friend.

GLENDALE, Calif—(AP)—Cautioned not to break the silence he has maintained since his quick, emotional confession to police, Paul A. Wright is scheduled for preliminary hearing today on charges he murdered his wife and best friend

Jerry Geisler, Wright's attorney, reiterated that his client would not testify. He too maintained silence as to defense straggedy. Previously, he said Wright would plead innocent.

The district attorney's office said it would offer only enough testimony to hold the 38-year-old airport executive for trial.

Soon after the early morning shooting at the Wright home Nov. 9, Wright told police he had killed his 28-year-old wife, Evelyn, and Kimmel, 32, airlines operations manager. He said he awoke from a nap to find his wife and Kimmel embracing on the piano bench.

Mrs. Wright, he said, smiled at him, then kissed Kimmel again.

Wright declared there was a "white flash" before his eyes, that he ran for his pistol and came back through the living room door shooting.

Glendale police and chief investigator Eugene Williams of the district attorney's office have expressed doubt that the shooting occurred as Wright said. Their aides have been working on a theory the killings were deliberate.

STATE, DEFENSE END TESTIMONY IN DEATH CASE

Columbus Physicians Testify For Pomeroy Officer on Last Day of Trial.

POMEROY—(U.P.)—Closing arguments were scheduled today in the second degree murder trial of Roscoe O. Fowler, suspended sheriff, accused of fatally assaulting Lafe Williamson, Meigs county Republican leader, last summer.

The jury of nine men and three women was expected to begin deliberations late today.

Two Columbus physicians and two Columbus policemen testified yesterday that it was improbable that Williamson was struck by a blackjack. They testified before the defense rested its case.

Explain Blackjack Wound.

The four stated that, in their experience of using blackjacks or treating blackjack wounds, they had never known a person to be struck without receiving a cut.

The state had contended that Williamson was struck by a blackjack during a dance at the Eagles club here last June 27. He died several days later.

"I never saw a blackjack that didn't make a cut," Officer Fay Nash testified.

Turnkey Ira Dodd said essentially the same.

Dr. John W. Means, Ohio State university surgery professor, testified that in three cases of skull fracture caused by blackjacks he had found "very definite local evidence in the scalp at the point of impact."

Dr. H. E. Lefever, special in neurological surgery, said that unconsciousness follows skull fractures in about 98 per cent of cases.

Detective Describes Slaying Scene at Dingeldine Trial.

SPRINGFIELD —(AP)— Defense counsel today called for cross examination Detective Vincent O'Brien, who with two other Springfield policemen had described at the first degree murder trial of Henry Dingledine, the scene of a Sept. 3 gun battle in which two peace officers and a bandit were slain.

The officers were among the first ten of a parade of witnesses whom the state planned to send to the stand.

They described for the state their arrival after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Edward Furry and City Patrolman Martin Randolph at a nearby Crystal lake cottage where the officers converged in an effort to trap four bandits who previously had robbed a Springfield cafe proprietor of $1,250.

Fund Agencies to Help Fill Out Job Census Questionnaires.

The Mansfield Community Fund office in the Bird building has a supply of cards for the federal unemployment census, according to Sidney L. Palmer, executive secretary.

Agencies of the Community Fund, especially the Salvation Army, Visiting Nurses, Friendly House and the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A., will assist men and women in making out the questionnaires which President Roosevelt has requested all unemployed and partially employed workers to do

The census must be completed by midnight Saturday.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

IT SEEMS inevitable that in his reflective moments the thought should occur to the president that for four years he has been getting pretty bad advice and that the major policies he thus has been induced to pursue never really added up to a logical total. In light of present-day facts it is difficult to see how any other view can be held.

TAKE, for example, the two most vociferously proclaimed New Deal objectives — first, to bring about a better distribution of wealth, and second, to provide jobs for the unemployed in private industry. Obviously, criticism of these isn't possible and never was. They are plainly "noble in purpose," desirable, right. And, so far as known, they have been the objectives of every White House occupant, regardless of party. If ever there was a public man to dissent from them his name cannot be recalled, all of which makes somewhat absurd the continuous propaganda designed to convince people that Mr. Roosevelt discovered these goals. Perhaps it is true that his approach has been more spectacular, but that does not alter the fact that his methods have completely frustrated his efforts and prevented progress.

CLEARLY, he nullified the attempt for a wider distribution of wealth by the imposition of taxes and enactment of measures which force into operation the law of diminishing returns and threaten the destruction of the very wealth he seeks to distribute. Equally clear is it that when he increases the cost of doing business, lays upon it burdens and imposes restrictions which prevent it from making money, he not only makes it impossible for business to provide jobs for the unemployed but adds to their number and enhances their distress. Again and again and again, this has been pointed out by opponents of the New Deal, but until recently the only result has been a chorus of denunciation, the dominant note of which was that these were "destructive critics," not concerned with 'human rights."

NOW THAT the inescapable consequences of this extraordinary course are manifested in a definite slump which swells the ranks of the jobless and is a matter of serious apprehension to every thoughtful man, a remarkable change has taken place in Washington. The fundamental mistake of the administration's hostility to business appears accepted at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue. Despite the president's assertion that governmental policies are not responsible, the best evidence that he knows better lies in his changed attitude, the altered tone of his message and the absence of embittered words. As for congress, it is literally amazing that at the outset of an extra session, called for certain specified purposes, they should be overshadowed by interest in one not even in the back of the president's mind when the call was made—to wit, the necessity of removing the handicaps which have reduced business to its present condition and put an end to the New Deal game of harassment.

VIEWING THIS state of affairs, it would be natural for the president to feel resentful toward the ardent young gentlemen whose zeal for remaking America influenced him to take steps which, under strong pressure of economic realities, he is now compelled to retrace. It would be natural—and certainly wholesome—if, recognizing the mess in which they have involved him, instead of trying to shift the blame, he would sweep them out of his administration and bar the White House door—particularly the back door—to their kind.

BUT, has he done that? Not yet. Last Sunday, in the New York Times, Mr. Arthur Krock, who does not make irresponsible statements, reported that at a White House conference which preceded the presidential message, two of the president's intimate counselors expressed themselves as believing that the capitalistic system was not worth saving and it would be better for Mr. Roosevelt to make no concessions to business. Mr. Krock asserted that it was Mr. Harry Hopkins—of all people—who dissented from this view, defended the capitalistic system, and that Mr. Roosevelt agreed with him. That is worth thinking over. Here in the White House, on the eve of an extra session of congress, with the nation expecting a message that will reassure business, the president of the United States is told by two of his intimates that he capialistic system is not worth saving and urged to let things slide. That, at such a time—or at any time—he should have such men among his intimate advisers is a strange thing, indeed. It is strange advice for an American president to receive, and it is strange that an American president should have close to him men capable of giving it. The incident deserves a good deal more publicity than it has gotten. If the full implications of that White House debate were generally grasped, there might easily arise a demand for names and a great national indignation. Because, in effect, what these friends of Mr. Roosevelt urge is revolution.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The seats sell for $5.50 (with tax) but it takes quite a few full houses subsequently to pay the cost of the glamorous one night labeled the "gala premiere."

When the stars went on parade the other evening to view the first showing of "The Hurricane," the setting for their display of finery and enthusiasm set Sam Goldwyn back $30,000 or more. This was about what the opening nights of "The Great Ziegfeld and "The Good Earth" cost Metro—and can be taken by now as a standard cost for the ultra-est of premiers.

Figuring the opening night brings in about $5,500 in paid admissions at the $5 rate—this does not include the 400-odd seats allotted critics and local politicians who travel on Annie Oakleys—you can see how many nights they'll have to fill the house at the lowered regular prices to crack the premier nut.

* * *

The premiere-stagers used to be content to decorate the forecourt of the theater, but now they undertake to spill movie atmosphere and lights down the length of the approaching street. The Goldwyn gang reproduced a native village—with huts, dancers, and lei-makers—down the central parkway of this artery.

Flowers dig quite a hole into the premier budget. They used 500 dozen dahlias, among other items, and real flower leis for the patrons and the grandstand-sitters. Fancy programs, fancy tickets, fancy light—and electricians to operate them—and fancy advertising are other essentials. It's quite simple, after all, to spend $30,000 on an opening.

But Sam Goldwyn, even though he was out of town and couldn't enjoy it, is like other producers in figuring a premiere is cheap at the price. The thousands of fans who lined the streets are talking, the thousands of photographs taken at the opening are distributed, the hundreds of pieces—like this one—are going out to tell the world that Hollywood is a place where interesting people, such as Mr. Goldwyn, do interesting things, such as making "The Hurricane" and ballyhooing it—$30,000 worth.

* * *

By now movie fans who've seen "The Hurricane" will all be talking about the handsome youth who plays the lead opposite Dorothy Lamour. They'll speak of him as Jon Hall, the movie name Goldwyn tacked on him, and they'll talk about his looks and his splendid physique and maybe about his acting. In the next few months and weeks they'll read articles about him and see him acclaimed as one of the "discoveries" of 1937. Jon Hall will have arrived—and he'll be subjected to the toughest strain of all: keeping his head and his sense of proportion.

When Hollywood lays on, it lays on heavily. A year ago, Jon Hall was dismissed with a line and a half in the movie directory of personalities, as follows:

"Charles Locher: actor. In 1935, 'Charlie Chan in Shanghai,' 20th Century-Fox."

REVEAL CUBAN MURDER PLOT

HAVANA — (UP) — Secret police have asserted that they had discovered a plot to assassinate Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of staff of the army and "strong man" of Cuba, and a number of other national leaders.

A secret organization called the revolutionary legion was held to be sponsor for the plot, and it was announced that Carlos Perez, 34 and Antonio Dominguez, had been arrested. Police asserted that both were Legion members.

Police said they discovered the plot after a raid on a residence in which, in addition to documents, they seized 17 rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

It was alleged that the new legion was formed by radical members of the Cuban youth organization, which police dissolved as a "terroristic" organization several months ago.

According to police, members of the new legion intended to kill Batista by attaching a dynamite bomb to an automobile. Police asserted also that arms had been smuggled into Cuba for terrorists from Mexico, where, they said, leaders of the legion were directing the plot.

QUINTUPLETS HAVE $500,000 IN LIQUID ASSETS, DAFOE SAYS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets have a half million dollars in liquid assets, Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, their medical guardian, has disclosed.

And at 3 years and 5 months, they care nothing at all about money—never ask for a nickel or dime.

Dr. Dafoe, here for a vacation, said it might be more than ten years before they reach the millionaire stage, "because their expenses will be greater from now on."

At the end of their first year, the quintuplets had $8,000 in the bank, their assets are invested in bonds in the Province of Ontario.

They not only are self-supporting, but contribute $100 a month to their family and in the next four years, probably will pay for a school to be built on their nursery ground.

It costs between $1,600 and $1,800 a month to maintain the five girls, their nursery and staff, Dr. Dafoe said. This includes the salary of two nurses, one teacher, a housekeeper, two maids, three guards for the grounds and a janitor. Dr. Dafoe draws a salary of $200 a month as medical guardian.

Mama and Papa Dionne and the other six children will have Christmas dinner with the quints, but there'll be no turkey for the five sisters—no ice cream or candy.

They've never tasted these dainties. Their nearest approach to ice cream has been frozen mousse.

Dr. Dafoe said one or two of the sisters had "a few doubts" about Santa Claus, because they pulled off his whiskers last year and thought they recognized him.

Labor Leader Ambushed By Assassins In Minneapolis

KILLED NEAR HOME AFTER PARKING AUTO

Victim Had Been Threatened, Son Tells Police; Writer Provides Clue.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(U.P.)—Patrick J. Corcoran, 45, prominent northwest labor leader, was assassinated late last night near his home in the fashionable Bryn Mawr section of Minneapolis.

The body, one bullet lodged in the head, was found early today by Mrs. W. S. McIntosh, a neighbor.

Police said Corcoran apparently had been ambushed as he was walking to his home after putting his car in the garage at the rear of the house. The body, sprawled across a sidewalk at the rear of a home two doors from his own, gave evidence that he had seen his assailants and had sought to escape. His briefcase was found near the body.

Robbery Motive Out.

Patrick Corcoran, jr., the slain man's son, was quoted by police as saying his father revealed he was slugged last Saturday night and that a shot had been fired at him.

Cedric Adams, columnist for the Minneapolis Star, who carried an item Nov. 9, concerning a tip which came to him forecasting assassination of "a prominent labor leader," supplied police with the source of his information.

Adams was called to police headquarters for questioning concerning his item which read:

"I met a very close friend of mine in the loop last night (Nov. 8.) He's given me scores of items in the past; some of them have been little scoops, too. And he's never been wrong. Here's one he dropped last night—you can take it for what it's worth: A prominent labor leader in Minneapolis will be 'taken for a ride' within two weeks."

Names Union Leader.

Police said Adams told them the information was furnished by theh head of one of the trucking unions, which was involved in the costly and bloody Minneapolis truck strikes of 1932 and 1933.

There were no witnesses to the shooting, police said. Residents of the area where the slaying occurred told police they heard no shots or outcries.

Police believed Corcoran was shot between 9 and 10 p. m. There was no snow under his body and a light snowfall had begun shortly after 10 p. m.

There have been errors in every city improvement ordinance passed in the past 10 years, but it's nothing to worry about, because the errors won't interfere with the legality of the measures. Council Clerk William J. Beer has found that the printed forms read "The hole cost of the improvement," where they should, of course, say "whole." The supply of forms will be exhausted pretty soon, and Beer's going to see to it that the error is corrected when the next batch is ordered from the printer.

The college craze of last fall—wearing of ear-muffs—has now reached the high schools. They're very comfortable these days, too, although the fad was originally started for style purposes rather than comfort. Not only have the high school boys in the city taken up the ear-muffs, but the girls, too, in a few cases. Several have been seen with them at high school games. They come in the school colors, too.

Just to save Charles F. Ackerman a lot of questions we're telling what he and his party brought back from their hunting trip on Tuesday which was sort of a celebration of Mr. Ackerman's 80th birthday anniversary. The party of six bagged nine birds and all the rabbits they wanted to bring home, and the veteran bank president brought down his share.

* * *

The hunting season, now four days old, hasn't caused any serious casualties in Richland county district, but it has taken its toll in sore muscles among the courthouse staff. The chief "victim" is County Treasurer John E. Kolb who admits he almost needed crutches to get down to the office the last two mornings. The damage was done on a trip into "the wilds" west of the city which—and this makes matters worse—netted only one rabbit.

CUT WAR RISK INSURANCE RATE AS EUROPEAN TENSION RELAXES

(By Associated Press)

War risk rates on international maritime commerce—one barometer of war tension—were reduced sharply today on cargoes for the Orient and the western Mediterranean.

The reduction announced in London by British marine insurance underwriters was believed due to three developments.

The transfer of Chinese-Japanese hostilities from the Shanghai area.

An apparent end of "piracy" which developed in the Mediterranean as an outgrowth of the Spanish civil war.

An easier political situation in Europe.

The rates on cargoes to or from Shanghai were cut to $1.25 for each $500 of value, whereas a month ago the rate was $10. The Mediterranean rate was reduced from $1.87 to $1.25.

But in Paris, Senator Henry Berenger, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the French senate, declared Japan had warned of probable retaliation for any arms shipments from French Indo-China to China. His statement appeared in conflict with previous denials of any such warning by other French officials and the Japanese embassy there.

In the Spanish civil conflict, government forces harassed the insurgent troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco with artillery and infantry attacks in the upper and lower Aragon sectors. The government operations apparently were aimed at frustrating a prospective insurgent drive eastward

Airport Executive Won't Take Stand at Arraignment In Killing of Wife, Friend.

GLENDALE, Calif.—(AP)—Cautioned not to break the silence he has maintained since his quick, emotional confession to police, Paul A. Wright is scheduled for preliminary hearing today on charges he murdered his wife and best friend.

Jerry Geisler, Wright's attorney, reiterated that his client would not testify. He too maintained silence as to defense strategy. Previously, he said Wright would plead innocent

The district attorney's office said it would offer only enough testimony to hold the 38-year-old airport executive for trial.

Soon after the early morning shooting at the Wright home Nov. 9, Wright told police he had killed his 28-year-old wife, Evelyn, and Kimmel, 32, airlines operations manager. He said he awoke from a nap to find his wife and Kimmel embracing on the piano bench.

Mrs. Wright, he said, smiled at him, then kissed Kimmel again

Wright declared there was a "white flash" before his eyes, that he ran for his pistol and came back through the living room door shooting.

Glendale police and chief investigator Eugene Williams of the district attorney's office have expressed doubt that the shooting occurred as Wright said. Their aides have been working on a theory the killings were deliberate.

STATE, DEFENSE END TESTIMONY IN DEATH CASE

Columbus Physicians Testify For Pomeroy Officer on Last Day of Trial.

POMEROY—(U.P.)—Closing arguments were scheduled today in the second degree murder trial of Roscoe O. Fowler, suspended sheriff, accused of fatally assaulting Lafe Williamson, Meigs county Republican leader, last summer.

The jury of nine men and three women was expected to begin deliberations late today.

Two Columbus physicians and two Columbus policemen testified yesterday that it was improbable that Williamson was struck by a blackjack. They testified before the defense rested its case.

Explain Blackjack Wound.

The four stated that, in their experience of using blackjacks or treating blackjack wounds, they had never known a person to be struck without receiving a cut.

The state had contended that Williamson was struck by a blackjack during a dance at the Eagles club here last June 27. He died several days later.

Turnkey Ira Dodd said essentially the same.

Dr. John W. Means, Ohio State university surgery professor, testified that in three cases of skull fracture caused by blackjacks he had found "very definite local evidence in the scalp at the point of impact."

Dr. H. E. Lefever, special in neurological surgery, said that unconsciousness follows skull fractures in about 98 per cent of cases.

Detective Describes Slaying Scene at Dingeldine Trial.

SPRINGFIELD —(AP)— Defense counsel today called for cross examination Detective Vincent O'Brien, who with two other Springfield policemen had described at the first degree murder trial of Henry Dingledine, the scene of a Sept. 3 gun battle in which two peace officers and a bandit were slain.

The officers were among the first ten of a parade of witnesses whom the state planned to send to the stand.

They described for the state their arrival after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Edward Furry and City Patrolman Martin Randolph at a nearby Crystal lake cottage where the officers converged in an effort to trap four bandits who previously had robbed a Springfield cafe proprietor of $1,250.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

IT SEEMS inevitable that in his reflective moments the thought should occur to the president that for four years he has been getting pretty bad advice and that the major policies he thus has been induced to pursue never really added up to a logical total. In light of present-day facts it is difficult to see how any other view can be held.

TAKE, for example, the two most vociferously proclaimed New Deal objectives — first, to bring about a better distribution of wealth, and second, to provide jobs for the unemployed in private industry. Obviously, criticism of these isn't possible and never was. They are plainly "noble in purpose," desirable, right. And, so far as known, they have been the objectives of every White House occupant, regardless of party. If ever there was a public man to dissent from them his name cannot be recalled, all of which makes somewhat absurd the continuous propaganda designed to convince people that Mr. Roosevelt discovered these goals. Perhaps it is true that his approach has been more spectacular, but that does not alter the fact that his methods have completely frustrated his efforts and prevented progress.

CLEARLY, he nullified the attempt for a wider distribution of wealth by the imposition of taxes and enactment of measures which force into operation the law of diminishing returns and threaten the destruction of the very wealth he seeks to distribute. Equally clear is it that when he increases the cost of doing business, lays upon it burdens and imposes restrictions which prevent it from making money, he not only makes it impossible for business to provide jobs for the unemployed but adds to their number and enhances their distress. Again and again and again, this has been pointed out by opponents of the New Deal, but until recently the only result has been a chorus of denunciation, the dominant note of which was that these were "destructive critics," not concerned with 'human rights."

NOW THAT the inescapable consequences of this extraordinary course are manifested in a definite slump which swells the ranks of the jobless and is a matter of serious apprehension to every thoughtful man, a remarkable change has taken place in Washington. The fundamental mistake of the administration's hostility to business appears accepted at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue. Despite the president's assertion that governmental policies are not responsible, the best evidence that he knows better lies in his changed attitude, the altered tone of his message and the absence of embittered words. As for congress, it is literally amazing that at the outset of an extra session, called for certain specified purposes, they should be overshadowed by interest in one not even in the back of the president's mind when the call was made—to wit, the necessity of removing the handicaps which have reduced business to its present condition and put an end to the New Deal game of harassment.

VIEWING THIS state of affairs, it would be natural for the president to feel resentful toward the ardent young gentlemen whose zeal for remaking America influenced him to take steps which, under strong pressure of economic realities, he is now compelled to retrace. It would be natural—and certainly wholesome—if, recognizing the mess in which they have involved him, instead of trying to shift the blame, he would sweep them out of his administration and bar the White House door—particularly the back door—to their kind.

BUT, has he done that? Not yet. Last Sunday, in the New York Times, Mr. Arthur Krock, who does not make irresponsible statements, reported that at a White House conference which preceded the presidential message, two of the president's intimate counselors expressed themselves as believing that the capitalistic system was not worth saving and it would be better for Mr. Roosevelt to make no concessions to business. Mr. Krock asserted that it was Mr. Harry Hopkins—of all people—who dissented from this view, defended the capitalistic system, and that Mr. Roosevelt agreed with him. That is worth thinking over. Here in the White House, on the eve of an extra session of congress, with the nation expecting a message that will reassure business, the president of the United States is told by two of his intimates that he capialsic system is not worth saving and urged to let things slide. That, at such a time—or at any time—he should have such men among his intimate advisers is a strange thing, indeed. It is strange advice for an American president to receive, and it is strange that an American president should have close to him men capable of giving it. The incident deserves a good deal more publicity than it has gotten. If the full implications of that White House debate were generally grasped, there might easily arise a demand for names and a great national indignation. Because, in effect, what these friends of Mr. Roosevelt urge is revolution.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The seats sell for $5.50 (with tax) but it takes quite a few full houses subsequently to pay the cost of the glamorous one night labeled the "gala premiere."

When the stars went on parade the other evening to view the first showing of "The Hurricane," the setting for their display of finery and enthusiasm set Sam Goldwyn back $30,000 or more. This was about what the opening nights of "The Great Ziegfeld and "The Good Earth" cost Metro—and can be taken by now as a standard cost for the ultra-est of premiers

Figuring the opening night brings in about $5,500 in paid admissions at the $5 rate—this does not include the 400-odd seats allotted critics and local politicians who travel on Annie Oakleys—you can see how many nights they'll have to fill the house at the lowered regular prices to crack the premier nut.

* * *

The premiere-stagers used to be content to decorate the forecourt of the theater, but now they undertake to spill movie atmosphere and lights down the length of the approaching street The Goldwyn gang reproduced a native village—with huts, dancers, and lei-makers—down the central parkway of this artery

Flowers dig quite a hole into the premier budget They used 500 dozen dahlias, among other items, and real flower leis for the patrons and the grandstand-sitters. Fancy programs, fancy tickets, fancy light—and electricians to operate them—and fancy advertising are other essentials It's quite simple, after all, to spend $30,000 on an opening.

But Sam Goldwyn, even though he was out of town and couldn't enjoy it, is like other producers in figuring a premiere is cheap at the price. The thousands of fans who lined the streets are talking, the thousands of photographs taken at the opening are distributed, the hundreds of pieces—like this one—are going out to tell the world that Hollywood is a place where interesting people, such as Mr. Goldwyn, do interesting things, such as making "The Hurricane" and ballyhooing it—$30,000 worth.

* * *

By now movie fans who've seen "The Hurricane" will all be talking about the handsome youth who plays the lead opposite Dorothy Lamour. They'll speak of him as Jon Hall, the movie name Goldwyn tacked on him, and they'll talk about his looks and his splendid physique and maybe about his acting. In the next few months and weeks they'll read articles about him and see him acclaimed as one of the "discoveries" of 1937 Jon Hall will have arrived—and he'll be subjected to the toughest strain of all: keeping his head and his sense of proportion.

When Hollywood lays on, it lays on heavily. A year ago, Jon Hall was dismissed with a line and a half in the movie directory of personalities, as follows:

"Charles Locher, actor. In 1935, 'Charlie Chan in Shanghai,' 20th Century-Fox."

Persian Lamb Joins Antelope

Persian lamb appears to have become one of the really important furs of the season as we here see it shown not only as a lavish trim for a black woolen suit, but as part of the material for the profile beret. The fur is combined with antelope to make the stunning and flattering hat.

New Upholsteries.

New upholstery fabrics shown at the American Furniture Mart in Chicago in July are interesting and outstanding. Most of the fabrics were of American manufacture, although, of course there were a number of imported brocatelles, velvets and damasks from Italy and France, used on a number of very fine pieces, the majority of fabrics shown were of domestic origin.

Damasks, brocatellas, satins, antique velvets, tapestries and pile fabrics, in all types and kinds of designs, stripes and texture weaves, appeared in profusion. While any number of colors were shown, newest were cerise (shocking pink), turquoise, chartreuse and shades of yellow. Variations of blue and wine have replaced the old rust and green of former years, and each period of furniture has special fabrics designed to give life and atmosphere to the chair or sofa it adorns. Chinese red with tiny mandarin or Chinese figurines, peacocks and symbols associated.

DUMB WAITERS

Dumb waiters were an English invention of the 18th century which consisted of tiers of trays affixed to a central support on a tripod base. They were usually placed diagonally at the corners of the dining table so that diners might help themselves after the servants had departed. One of Chippendale's early bills mentions "two mahogany Dumb Waiters on Castors" which were supplied to Kenton palace. These tiered tables are reproduced today for use not only in the dining room, but in the living room as well. They may serve as lamp tables, or to hold flower bowls, bits of interesting glass and bric-a-brac, or for various other purposes.

FITTED WAISTLINES

Fitted waistlines and flaring coats inspired by the Cossack uniform, are being shown by several Paris designers. They vary the pencil slim silhouette which is tops in style just now. These costumes have back fullness and some are trimmed with wool in contrasting color, some in Persian.

DR. J. L. KING SPEAKS ON DRAMA OF TODAY

Travelers, Wednesday Study, Nomad Clubs Have Joint Luncheon Meeting at Women's Club—Hear Play Reviews.

DR. J. L. KING, head of the English department of Denison university, was the guest speaker yesterday at the joint luncheon meeting of the Wednesday Study club, the Travelers club, and the Nomad club at the Women's Club. Dr. King spoke on "American Drama Today." According to Dr. King there are three characteristics of drama. It must be entertaining, it must mirror life and show the customs and manners of the age, and it must be a temple of beauty or good literature.

The speaker divided drama into three general classes which were satire, domestic comedy, and literary drama. He cited George Kaufman as the most outstanding satirical dramatist and read parts from his recent plays "I'd Rather Be Right," and "You Can't Take It With You." He considers Rachel Crowthers the best domestic writer and reviewed her recent play, "As Husbands Go."

Eugene O'Neill, of the modern age, he contrasted with Shakespeare and discussed "Mourning Becomes Electra." Dr. King mentioned Maxwell Anderson along with O'Neill as one of the greatest literary dramatists. He read from "Wingless Victory" and "High Tor," as well as the last scene from "Elizabeth the Queen."

Hostesses for the clubs were Mrs. E. R. Hartman, Mrs. E. W. Dann, and Mrs. Mary B. Gilbert. Mrs A. M. Colby introduced the speaker at the luncheon.

Mrs. Schubert emphasized the fact that Damascus antedates every city in the world and that in its population it is much like Jerusalem and is subject to the same racial classes which occur so frequently in that city. She also spoke of the customs of the people and of the famous mosques and the bazaars which are superior to any Oriental markets. It is at Damascus that the most beautiful rugs and the most exquisite brass work is seen, Mrs. Schubert told the club members.

"Kola Neidra" and "Rachem" were the vocal solos given by Mrs William Hazeltine. Guests of the club were Mrs. Harry Buchan, Mrs. Howard Keene, Mrs. Louis Freundlich, and Mrs Aaron Lockhart.

'Are Girls 18 Of Age?' Two Sisters Ask

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: Please answer this letter through your column. I would like to know the exact rights of a girl of 18. My sister and I believe a girl is of age when she becomes 18. By that we mean she has the right to marry and do certain things without consulting her parents. Will you tell me who is right, our mother or us? I am 15, my sister is 18.

"HELEN AND B."

In some states a girl of 18 can marry without her parents' consent. In most she must be 21. Twenty-one also is the voting age, you know, so technically a girl is not of age until then any more than her brother is.

But whatever the law says about such matters, really, dears, I do not believe a girl ever should marry without her parents' knowledge, and very seldom without their consent. A girl of 18 is not grown up enough to be stable emotionally — (is anyone, I wonder)? She may fancy herself madly in love with some person whom her mother and father can clearly see will only make her miserable. She can't see it, but they can.

But even if she is right in choice of a mate, I don't see how a girl of any age can wed happily without her parents' knowledge. What you girls do affects your mother just as much as her actions affect you. You don't expect your mother to take a very important step in life without letting you know, do you? I bet you want to know where she is at all times. If you come home from school or work and find she is not at home, you feel definitely abused.

The family tie in most homes is close, thank goodness. We just do not make great changes in our lives without at least informing those near and dear to us. It is their business to know what we are planning to do and to give us their advice. And if that advice happens to be different from that which we hoped they would give, surely we can afford to wait a while and see if time proves we were right or they were. Don't you agree with me?

* * *

HEART BROKEN: You say your boy friend has been very nice to you and does lots of nice things for you. Yet later on in your letter you complain that he tells outsiders about your jealousy over the gift he wears, and lets other people influence him and keeps you waiting.

I think if you stopped making a fuss and showing jealousy over the gift this other girl gave him, he would be much less likely to show it to people and pretend to be so very fond of it. He does it to make you jealous. That is not very kind, but it is natural, nevertheless.

Try to pay no attention to his teasing, and you will be much happier. I presume he likes you very much or he wouldn't go with you, would he?

Change the stove covers on the front of the stove to the back when they turn a reddish-brown and repeat this from time to time as they get red. A good stove polish will keep covers well blackened.

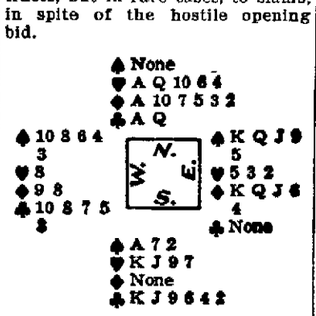
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

REPLY WITH A MAJOR

WHEN your partner doubles one major suit informatively, he usually hopes for a response from you in the other major and is prepared to support you if you have even a mere four little cards of it. Even a six-card minor suit should seldom be preferred in response to such a double unless the suit is quite strong and the hand in general has enough power to give your partner a jump. Such sound responding with the other major can lead not only to game contracts, but in rare cases, to slams; in spite of the hostile opening bid.

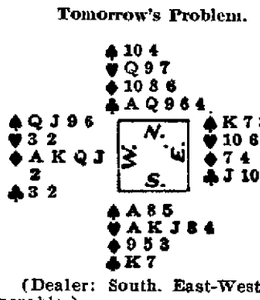


(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

Here East opened with 1-Spade, South passed, West bid 2-Spades and North doubled South bid 3-Hearts, which North raised to 4-Hearts. Even though the opponents had opened the bidding, South tried 5-Hearts and North took the contract to 6-Hearts.

Against this contract, West led a club, which East ruffed, and he returned the diamond K. From then on South had no difficulty in fulfilling his contract

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play to make 4-Hearts, after three diamond tricks have been cashed and a spade led?

When soil in which house plants are potted becomes more like clay than loam it may be lightened by adding sand to it. Plants grow best in this kind of soil.

Girls Should Correct Hand Condition

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

"IT IS A WISE man who does not waste time in the regrets of yesterday." That's what the wise Chinese philosopher, Confucius, once said, and in my opinion, those words are extremely sage, for the truly wise woman is the one who does not grieve over yesterday's mistakes, but attempts to correct them; who does not berate herself for neglecting yesterday's opportunities, but attempts to take advantage of those of today.

Take, for instance, the girl whose hands, although very smooth and shapely, are always damp and clammy. Such a condition naturally detracts from the perfect loveliness of her hands, but instead of grieving over the fact and doing nothing about it, the lass should spend her time correcting the condition. A good skin balm will keep the hands smooth and white, but a perspiration corrective used on her hands at intervals, will prevent them from becoming annoyingly moist and damp

Damp, moist hands often prove a source of embarrassment to their owner. They are very unpleasant to touch, and can really prove a handicap to a girl, no matter how shapely, smooth or white they are. They make her feel self-conscious and ill-at-ease, and consequently, she loses a good deal of her poise and charm.

Sensitive Folk Afflicted.

Sticky, perspiring hands are usually found on persons of a very sensitive or nervous type They sometimes indicate partial or complete nervous exhaustion, and in properly treating them, the first step should be the correction of any nervous disorders, the building up of good physical health

However, there are superficial treatments that help somewhat in correcting excessive perspiration of the hands. One very satisfactory mixture for this purpose can be made up of two drams of boric acid, three drams of borax, three drams of salicylic acid, three ounces of glycerine and three ounces of bay rum. And another equally effective solution can be made of two drams of tannic acid, one ounce of glycerine, three ounces of rosewater and two ounces of toilet alcohol.

Either of these two solutions can be used on the hands with perfect safety, if correctly applied. They merely help to correct the excessiveness of the perspiration, but do not cause the destruction of the sweat glands. They act in the capacity of perspiration deterrents, and help to keep the hands dry, cool and fresh.

Before using these solutions, the hands should be thoroughly cleansed, and then sponged with your chosen solution. This should be done three times a day. After the sponging, the solution should be permitted to dry on the hands, and then a good skin balm should be massaged into the hands, to counteract any drying effects This procedure will not only help to correct the overactivity of the perspiratory glands, but will also help to keep the hands cool, smooth and velvety.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

THERE WAS condescending regret in my mother-in-law's tone as she told me that I was "weak, weak, where servants were concerned" which would have infuriated me if it had not amused me, instead. But, indeed, I had no room for either emotion in my relief at seeing her sit down in her favorite rocking chair — we had reached her room in our colloquy—with the apparent intention of remaining in it.

"Luckily, Katie will have very little to do today except prepare the meals," my mother-in-law said. "I, myself, have overseen Mrs. Ticer in the cleaning, so that everything is in order except for the final dusting and re-arranging of the flowers. As I really am very tired, I know you will not mind if I remain in my room to rest until Mary comes. I do not feel equal to meeting Katie and listening to her jabber."

"I think you are very wise," I told her, evading the comment upon Katie. "I'll go over now and let her get settled in her own room before luncheon. A little later may I come up and consult with you about tea and dinner? I fancy Mary and Noel will arrive in plenty of time for tea."

"Of course, Child," she said graciously. "Come up any time you wish. Unless I am asleep, I shall be at your service all day."

"Thank you," I said earnestly, and went back to my own room, where Katie eyed me queerly but made no further comment upon Mrs. Ticer.

Not Insolence.

"Vot matter mit old vomans?" she queried, and for the thousandth time I silently fumed at my failure to compel Katie to apply any other appellation to my mother-in-law. If the words meant studied insolence, I should long since have made an issue of it, even it it should entail losing Katie, who is almost indispensable in my life. But they represent volatile childish carelessness, and long experience has told me that punching a feather pillow is the only other activity as futile as trying to reform Katie's vagaries.

"Me, I hope she not seeck," she said with real concern. "She no gif me hell dees morning ven she find oudt I coom in your room. Sumtings must be vrong mit her."

I caught back a smile with difficulty.

"No, she is not sick," I said, "but she is very tired She has been overseeing Mrs. Ticer in the cleaning of the house. I think you will find everything in order, and you will have just a final dusting and the meals after you have your own rooms settled."

Katie Worried.

She gave a militant toss of her head as she walked toward the door.

"I no bodder mit mine own rooms or tings today," she said. "Dey keep. I nd it old vomans stand ofer dot Ticer boonch of soup greens vile she clean, den rooms all right. Nobody kin put nuddings ofer on old vomans But mine kitchen! I shoost know nuddings vere I leave eet, und I no can't cook ven I can't find tings Dot Ticer vomans—I'll bet your boots she got coffee in flour bin und sugar in soap box.

My sorely tried risibles rebelled and I laughed outright

"Oh, I hope not so bad as that, Katie," I said, and after the fraction of a second's indecision, she also broke into laughter.

Madge Recalls Plan.

"Might shoost as vell laugh as cry," she said, turning toward the door. But with her hand on the door, she turned and looked brightly at me.

"Vot you vant for loonch?" she asked.

I had a sudden inspiration.

"I'll let you decide Fix up a lunch for Mr Graham, his mother and me, with the dishes we like But don't cook anything that requires much time You're going to have a busy day, you know And by the way, where is Jim?"

For there had come to me the remembrance of the sabotage I wished to perpetrate upon the Veritzen motor car in order to give Noel an extra day with Mary.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Nov. 19.

RATHER unfavorable planetary conditions prevail on this day, all calling for very circumspect action, both in business and private life. There are portents of financial loss as well as trickery, malice and danger in connection with writings. Beware of too friendly persons, and safeguard papers and contracts. With precaution and good judgment, such untoward events may be avoided.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have some very disagreeable experiences during the year unless they protect their money, contracts and writings from unscrupulous persons With care and vigilance, all may thrive.

A child born on this day may be lively, brilliant and companionable, but not to be too highly trusted, since it may incline to expediency rather than principle unless properly directed.

If a custard pie shrinks from the crust it has been baked in too hot an oven. The oven should be hot for the first eight or ten minutes in order to bake the pastry so it will not become soaked with liquid. Then reduce the heat or the custard will boil.

Questions On Everyday Etiquette

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you consider it overpolite to write notes of appreciation to friends whom we see every day and have verbally thanked for kindnesses shown during the serious illness of our little girl—now happily recovered. I don't want to appear a stickler for form, and yet I want to do whatever would be the nicest way of showing the extent of our gratitude.

Answer: It would sound to me very unnecessary to write letters to those whom you see constantly, and yet there are occasions when very deep appreciation is more easily said on paper than by word of mouth. By this I mean if some one showed you so great a kindness that it is hard to express your thanks without emotion, a note would perhaps solve the difficulty. But for ordinary neighborly exchanges of kindnesses, notes in addition to verbal thanks would be rather absurd.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a friend who always answers the telephone by saying "Yes?" in an inquiring tone of voice I've never heard that there is any correct form but certainly "Hello" seems to be the most often used. What is your opinion of answering "Yes?"

Answer: I have never heard any one say this, and personally I like "Hello" better because words in ordinary use are best suited to ordinary situations To say "Yes?" on the telephone would be like calling "Let me see you" when some one knocks instead of "Come in." And yet I can easily understand the revolt of some one against the unvarying "Hello!" and see no real reason why she may not be allowed to say "Yes?" if she wants to!

FRENCH PEOPLE FEAR RUNAWAY OF HIGH PRICES

Soaring Living Costs Wipe Out Wage Increases; New Crisis Foreseen.

PARIS — (U.P.) — Foreign countries have become aware of France's financial plight through the two sharp falls of the franc on the international market in the last month and a half, but the average Frenchman is much more aware of it through the sudden rise in the cost of living

According to statistics compiled after one year of Blum's Popular Front government the majority of French workers who benefited from wage rises and shortening of working hours of the late summer of 1936 now face a decrease in real wages The cost of living has mounted so sharply in recent months that the gains registered a year ago have been more than wiped out

A glance at several essential products which figure on every Frenchman's living budget reveal that foodstuffs have risen on an average of 25 per cent while wage increases average only 21 per cent And the average Frenchman feels a natural fear that the cost of living hasn't stopped mounting.

No More Nickel Bread.

Comparing prices between June, 1936, and June 1937, gives a better idea of what this means to the average housewife when she goes to market Bread has risen from 1.60 francs to 2 35, milk per liter from 1 20 to 1 60; eggs per dozen from 6 80 to 8 55; sugar per kilo from 3 25 to 4.45 butter per kilo from 16 40 to 20.40, beefsteak per kilo from 23 30 to 31 10, pork per kilo from 16 35 to 17 45, coal per 50 kilos from 17 to 23 35, gas per cubic meter from .95 to 1.20; and electricity per kilowatt from 1 55 to 1.65. (The franc at current exchange rates is 3.75 cents.)

Many other items which touch every Frenchman's pocketbook also have gone up an average of 25 per cent When the financial crisis which brought Blum to resign posed the question of filling a depleted treasury before Camille Chautemps, his successor, the first step that the new government took was to pass slashing decrees for all items which the state controls for internal taxation Railway, bus metro and transport fares in general rose on an average of 30 per cent cigarets stamps, telephone and telegraph rates 25 per cent while rentals were permitted to rise in equal proportion

Indirect Taxation Used.

Up to now the new Popular Front government under the direction of the Radicals has resorted exclusively to indirect taxation in its attempt to fill the coffers of the treasury Indications that this will not be sufficient to fill the void created in large part by a mass exodus of capital to foreign countries, came in the middle of July when the franc took a further fall of 5 per cent on the international exchange market.

Other disquieting signs have come with a slackening of the public works program inaugurated by Blum to reduce unemployment One of the biggest items in this program was the building of the International Exposition at Paris which absorbed about 25,000 direct workers and provided work for hundreds of thousands who supplied materials to them for the building of its pavilions

ONLY FOURTH OF ROLL CALL GOAL REACHED

2,272 Members Enrolled to Date In Red Cross Drive; 100 Per Centers Soar.

With only a week to go, the Red Cross Roll Call had reached only one fourth of its goal of 9,000 members today, but only a few precincts had been canvassed completely, W. J. Locke, campaign chairman, said.

Reports from workers showed 2,272 members and $3,200 in cash turned in to date. Few reports have come in from the county and none from Shelby, while most of the city precincts are unfinished, Locke added.

"Workers have reported many increased contributions at places they have canvassed and reports are considerably ahead of the same period in last year's membership drive," Locke said.

Heading a long list of additional 100 per cent concerns today are the city police department, city firemen and the county sheriff's office. Others are:

China Moves Government From Nanking

Fighting a desperate, back-to-the wall fight to preserve her independence against Japan, China arranged to move her government from Nanking to Hankow, 300 miles farther inland. Members of the government, and the populace as well, moved out of Nanking in the face of Japanese advances. At the same time, ministries of foreign affairs, finance and public health transferred their records and personnel to Hankow.
